BIG FIRE IN CAMBRIDGE

2 ALARMS RUNG IN AS FLAMES SPREAD

A fire that burned with tremendous rapidity and threatened to spread through the East Cambridge tenement district broke out shortly after 2 o'clock today in the four-story wooden building at First and Charles streets, East Cambridge, and occupied by M. Rosenthal as a manufactory of ice cream cones.

Two alarms were sounded in swift succession. Within ten minutes the whole building was aflame. Nearby tenement houses and fences were scorched or set ablaze. The plant of the Winter Hill Ice Company in the rear of the factory, caught.

The early moments of the fire were full of sensational incidents. The employes of the big factory had to race to safety.

PREVENTS GAS EXPLOSION.

James Kinney, an employe of the Cambridge Gas Light Company, responding to the alarm, forced his way into the building, up the stairs and turned off a four-inch gas main that supplies five hundred gas jets. He made his return to the street with difficulty, halfchoked by the smoke.

Engine 3 of East Cambridge, one of the first pieces of apparatus to respond to the alarm, took a stand squarely in front of the building and began pumping.

Almost at once the fire broke through the wall of the big wooden factory and the paint and varnish on the engine began to blister.

The horses had been removed; but volunteers caught the engine and in the face of the blistering heat trundled it to safety.

M. Rosenthal, the owner of the plant, has a Boston establishment at No. 5 Allen street.

The second floor of the building was devoted t othe manufacture of the ice cream cones. Supplies were stored on the first floor, and the upper floors were filled with the completed product.

The building was formerly occupied as a machine shop by James H. Roberts.

The fire generated thick, black smoke that was swept over the surrounding district. A high wind made the work of the firemen desperate business.

MRS. CRAFTS OF BROOKLINE TELLS OF ELOPEMENT

Mrs. Anna Turner Crafts, twe nty-year-old girl, who eloped with Harvard student. She d eclares in a statement today that she does not love him.

Mrs. Anna Turner Crafts of Brookline today told her own story of her elopement over a year ago with Ronald Dexter Crafts, Harvard '15, when she married at Nashua, N. H., in September, 1914, while Crafts was a student at Harvard.

The young wife—she is twenty and is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Turner of Ormsby road, Brookline—declares that she does not love Crafts, does not care for him and will never live with him.

She says she wants to have nothing more to do with him.

"TELL THE RIGHT SIDE."

She declares to be untrue statements attributed to young Crafts—he is twenty-three and the son of W. B. Crafts of Tenneth street, Brookline—and in her own statement she uses the words "falsehoods" and "contemptible."

"My friends know the situation. I am loth to publicity in a thing of this sort, but when he gives out such misleading statements to the press I'm just going to tell the right side of the thing. I shan't say another word after this interview, however.

"He has never contributed to my support. He has written me several letters urging me to come back with him. His parents have made repeated attempts also to have me live with him, but it will never come to pass. The two things I want understood plainly are these: I did not propose the elopement; my folks have never influenced me, but have simply told me that if I loved him I should live with him.

NO HONEYMOON TRIP.

"He said I suggested our elopement," says the young wife. "What a statement for him to give out. That is a falsehood.

MISTAKEN ROMANCE.

"There never was a Honeymoon. We went to Nashua, were married by a justice of the peace, came back to Boston. He went to Harvard. I went to Wheaton Seminary in Norton. News of our marriage leaked out soon after, however. I have never lived with him and never shall."

Crafts was quoted as saying his wife did love him and that her parents were keeping her from him.

"Imagine my proposing an elopement. Why he went to Nashua five days before we were married and got a license, entirely unknown to me. The whole trouble was due to the fact that I was pretty young and I really didn't realize the seriousness of the affair. I was romantic and all that, but what a mistake.

"Not over a month ago I wrote him a letter and told him that I did not care for him. I told him that I should never live with him. I have never retracted the statement that I don't love him. I have given him every chance.

"I have tested myself by allowing him to call upon me here at my home in order to see that I was sure I didn't care for him.

"Hobbs came to me and said he was out of work, that he was looking for a place as a chauffeur and that he wanted to hire a room.

"During the week here he used the telephone frequently, received two letters, but had no callers.

HOBBS DISAPPEARS.

"He left my house Saturday morning, and did not return all day. Sunday morning I went to the room to make the bed, and I found that it had not been slept in.

"At 6:30 Sunday evening I went to the room and his suit case was still there. I went to church, and when I returned went to the room again.

"This time the suit case was gone; and on the table were Mr. Hobbs' keys, one to the door of his room, the other to the front door.

"He had had the keys; and they were not in the room during the day. So either he or some friend came to

New Haven Road Would Raise Warm Car Rates

The New Haven Railroad filed a new schedule with the Public Service Commission today, contemplating a new raise in the rates for "warm car" service between local stations.

The new rates proposed by the New Haven are substantially double the first-class rates that were operative two years ago. The first-class rates were raised 10 per cent. last year.

Apples shipped in barrels and bags will be subjected to the greatest increase, if the new rates are approved by the Public Service Commission.

The railroad maintains that while shippers demand the permanent maintenance of "warm car" service, they send local shipments in unheated cars during fair weather and that the "warm car" service is therefore a loss to the railroad.

TRY MRS. BURNS AS POISONER

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Nov. 15.—The trial of Mrs. Mary A. Burns of Nottingham, accused of the murder of her husband, Frank Burns, a year ago, opened in the Rockingham Superior Court here today, and by mid-afternoon ten of the twelve jurors had been chosen. The nine jurors follow:

JOSEPH P. LAWRENCE, farmer, East Kingston.
ALFRED L. MARSTON, farmer, Northampton.
BENJAMIN STACKHOUSE, engineer, Derry.
MICHAEL MOONEY, button worker, Portsmouth.
GEORGE C. BROWN, carpenter, Exeter.
HIRAM O. DURGIN, shoemaker and farmer, Newton.
FRED L. WEBSTER, assistant postmaster, Windham.
WARREN M. HATCH, baker, Derry.
EDWARD B. WEEKS, farmer, Greenland.
ALONZO G. WILSON, farmer, Salem.

EIGHTY TALESMEN PRESENT.

Eighty talesmen were present, and nine jurors were secured out of the first twenty-seven men questioned. Chief Justice Robert G. Pike, who will preside during the trial, personally questioned the talesmen.

Mrs. Burns sat directly behind her counsel, and was keenly interested in the examination of the veniremen. She did not remove the small hat nervous, and looked attractive in a dark blue skirt, blue silk waist with white collar and cuffs, and dark blue velvet hat with light blue feather. She sat between her mother, Mrs. Davis, and the jail matron, Mrs. William Shaw. Behind her sat her sister, Mrs. Fred Gove.

The accused woman came to the courthouse with Mrs. Shaw and Mrs. Gove. When her name was called, she arose, and in reply to the question, "Are you Mary A. Burns?" she replied in a calm voice: "Yes." She then sat down.

Burns died at Nottingham on December 13, 1914, and the circumstances were such that an investigation followed, and it ended with the arrest of Mrs. Burns, charged with administering cyanide of potassium in a drink of whiskey to her husband, from which he died almost immediately.

INDICTED IN APRIL.

It is alleged that Mrs. Burns purchased the poison at a drug store in Manchester three days before her husband died, and that she had attempted to purchase the same drug at a store in Laconia the day previous.

Mrs. Burns was indicted by the grand jury in April of this year, for murder, and she was subsequently placed in the New Hampshire Hospital for the Insane for observation, and in August was brought back and placed in the local jail, on the report of Superintendent Bancroft that the woman was sane.

DEFENDS COURSE IN CABINET

By PERCY THOMAS,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

LONDON, Nov. 15.—Winston Spencer Churchill, former First Lord of the British Admiralty against whom more bitter criticism has been launched than any other man in the English government since the war began, made his speech of defence in the House of Commons this afternoon.

Mr. Churchill put full responsibility for the disastrous Antwerp expedition upon Earl Kitchener, the Secretary for State for War, and the French government.

The former First Lord of the Admiralty also denied personal responsibility for the Dardanelles enterprise.

"The proposition to send an expedition to the Dardanelles to open up the way to Constantinople was profoundly, naturely and elaborately considered," declared Mr. Churchill.

It has been charged that Mr. Churchill acted too quickly and too much upon his own initiative in sending the expeditions to Antwerp and the Dardanelles.

As to the Antwerp enterprise, Mr. Churchill said:

"The idea of sending a relief army to save Antwerp from capture by the Germans originated with Lord Kitchener and the French government. That the expedition arrived too late to save the Belgian city was not my fault."

Mr. Churchill declared that he always consulted the first sea lord of the admiralty before making any official move.

Baron Fisher of Kilverstone, known as the "Father of the modern English navy," was first sea lord of the admiralty for some time during Mr. Churchill's tenure as first lord of the admiralty, and the differences which led the Baron to retire have never been explained.

"No act, no policy nor any scheme of distribution was put into effect during my administration, which did not have the concurrence of the first sea lord in writing," said Mr. Churchill.

ALLIES LAUNCH ANOTHER BIG DRIVE AGAINST THE GERMANS

By CHARLES F. BERTELLI, International News Service Staff Correspondent.

PARIS, Nov. 15.—The first great cooperative drive against the Germans since the interchange of general staff officers between England and France is under way.

From Artois to Ypres the Anglo-French troops have begun a closely linked offensive, and French and British guns are pounding the German lines night and day. This operation evidently has a double object.

1—The capture of Lens and Lille.

2—Prevention of the transportation of German troops from the Western theatre to the Eastern or into the Balkans.

Between Arras and Lallassee, where the British and French armies join, the German salient of Lens is being pounded on two sides. Since the last offensive in that region the allies have been reinforced and fresh artillery has been moved to the front. It is estimated that at least 2,000 guns are hammering away at the German trenches.

HEAVY GERMAN LOSSES.

Another battle has developed in Artois. The French War Office reported today that heavy fighting was in progress at the "labyrinth," northeast of Arras, throughout the entire night. The losses of the Germans in the engagement of November 14 were very heavy. The following is the text of the official communique.

"In Artois at the 'labyrinth' rifle fire and battling with grenades continued without interruption throughout the night.

"It is confirmed that the losses of the enemy in the action of November 14 were very great.

"In Champagne the Germans attacked with grenades the shelters established in front of our observation posts at Tahure Hill. All attacks were repulsed.

"In the Woevre, to the north of Cirey, the explosions of one of our mines, accompanied by well-directed fire from our trench mortars, wrecked the organizations and sap works of the enemy."

GERMANS STORM TRENCHES.

A Berlin official report today says that the Germans have stormed 300 yards of French trenches north of Ecurie. The report says:

"Western theatre—The Germans stormed 300 yards of French trenches northeast of Ecurie.

"Eastern theatre—Near Smorgonje Field Marshal von Hindenburg repulsed Russian attacks. General von Linglesen's Austro-German troops attacked the Russian positions on the bank of the Styr River and the Russians were driven over the east bank. The whole west bank of the Styr is now free of Russians."

ITALIANS LOSE IN ISONZO, SAY AUSTRIANS

By International News Service.

VIENNA, Nov. 15.—The third battle of the Isonzo can be considered practically terminated," says the War Office today in an official description of the report reviewing operations on the Austrian-Italian front.

The Italians used 15-inch shells against the Gorizia bridgehead for the first time in their recent bombardment.

The report follows:

"The third Isonzo battle can be considered practically at an end. This means that the Italians have lost the fight. The enemy fought bravely, but their efforts were in vain. In an attempt to reduce the Gorizia bridgehead the Italians used 15-inch shells for the first time. It must be said for the Italian artillery it was well worked. This is shown by the shell craters before and around our works.

"During the bombardment of our defenses, the Austro-Hungarian soldiers kept under cover. When the fire ceased the Italians were told that all the Austro-Hungarians were dead. The enemy then advanced against us and our fire was held until they were only a short distance away. As our volleys blazed out the Italians fell in heaps. Not one reached our trenches. Those who were not killed or wounded fled."

ITALIAN LINER BOSNIA SUNK; 19 MISSING

ROME, Nov. 15.—Hovoc by Teutonic submarines continues, their latest prey being the 2,561-ton Italian steamship Bosnia. While four of the five lifeboats in which the passengers and crew were permitted to embark have landed, the fate of the fifth is unknown.

Twelve seamen and seven passengers are missing.

The submarine which sank the Bosnia flew the Austrian flag.

The Bosnia was built in 1898. She was 307 feet long, 39 feet beam and 25 feet deep. The home port of the Bosnia was Venice, and she was owned by the Societa Nazionale di Servira Maritima of Rome.

From various sources it is ascertained that the following Americans were on the Ancona: Dr. Cecile L. Greil, Alexander Patativo and his wife and four children, Mrs. Francisco Mascolo Lamura, Pasquale Laurino and Giuseppe Torrial and his wife. Of these only Mrs. Greil and Torrial are among the survivors.

Dr. Greil is said to have been the only native American on the vessel.

SHARP'S MESSAGE FAILS TO CLEAR UP ANCONA MYSTERY

By International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—A long cable was received at the State Department today from Ambassador Sharp at Paris, regarding the sinking of the Ancona, but it failed to clear up any of the conflicting points about which this government must have information before it can act.

The dispatch told principally of the landing of survivors at Bizerta. It did state, however, that the submarine which sank the liner was an unusually large one. The dispatch follows:

"The only information available at the French Ministry of Marine on the torpedoing of the Ancona is contained in the following telegram from the Prefect of Bizerta.

"November 7.—One hundred shipwrecked survivors of which six wounded, from Ancona, torpedoed Sunday, brought to Bizerta.

"November 8—Two torpedo boats have brought twenty-one survivors and four bodies to Bizerta. Survivors 163 out of 440 and are being cared for at Sidi-Ad-Ballah Hospital. The submarine, which sank the Ancona, according to concordant information received by me, was from 80 to 100 meters long and armed with two fairly large guns forward and two smaller ones aft.

"November 9—A boat from the Ancona arrived today at Cape Bon total saved to 197. Of the 161 cared for at Sidi-Ad-Ballah Hospital, one is an American woman, one a Russian, sixteen are Greeks and the balance Italians.

200,000 ALLIED TROOPS NOW IN BALKANS

By PERCY THOMAS, International News Service Special Correspondent.

LONDON, Nov. 15.—The allies are reported now to have nearly 200,000 troops in the Balkans and more are being landed at Salonica every day.

While the German and Austro-Hungarian forces in northern Serbia are blasting their way forward with their heavy artillery, the Bulgarians and Anglo-French forces are at close grips in the south over a front fifty miles wide.

The fall of Veles (Kopruiu) to the Anglo-French is imminent, as the Bulgarian positions defending the town are being shelled.

A Reuter dispatch from Salonica states that the Bulgarians have retaken Tetova, thus preventing a junction of Serbian and allied forces in the valley of the upper Vardar, west of Uskub.

KITCHENER'S MISSION.

Although nothing official has been given out on the subject, it is reported the Earl Kitchener, the Secretary of State for War, has reached his destination.

When Kitchener started for the Near Eastern front considerable speculation as to the real object of his trip followed and this has never been completely cleared up.

Whether or not the war secretary bears a special message to King Constantine of Greece from King George of England is not positively known, but it has been strongly reported, and there seems to be some strength behind the fact that Earl Kitchener was in conference with King George before leaving for the East.

Pressure on the Greek King has not relaxed any. It is now said that the Kaiser has offered to put a fleet of submarines into the Mediterranean to protect the Greek coast if Greece will throw her lot with the central powers. The Greek navy is practically in the power of England, as there are British officers on all the Greek warships.

BULGARIAN REPORT.

"Operations on all our fronts are proceeding favorably," says a official statement given out by the Bulgarian War Office at Sofia today. "Strong forces that succeeded in crossing the Tcherna river have been thrown back across that stream."

The Tcherna River lies in the extreme southern part of Serbia between Monastir and Gievgeli.

The Serbian town of Nish, who remained behind when the Serb troops retreated to Kraguievatz has told the Bulgarian military authorities that he prevented the Serbian commander at Nish from leaving bands of francstieurs in the houses to fire upon the Bulgarians when they entered the city.

8,500 SERBS CAPTURED.

The capture of 8,500 more Serbians and twelve more Serbian guns by the Austro-German and Bulgarian forces in the Balkans was reported today by the German War Office at Berlin.

The official report reads:

"Balkan theatre—The prosecution of the Serbian campaign is progressing favorably on all fronts. Eighty-five hundred more Serbs have been captured. Of these 7,000 prisoners and six guns were captured by the Bulgarians and the balance by the Austro-German forces."

Bulgarian attacks against the French on the Tcherna River in southern Serbia were repulsed with heavy losses, the French War Office reported today in the following official communique:

"Army of the Orient—During the day of November 13 we made progress north of Rabrova in the direction of Kosturino. The Bulgarians attacked along the whole front on the left bank of the Tcherna River, but were everywhere repulsed with heavy losses."

Retreat of the Montenegrins east of Visegrad before the advance of the Austrians was admitted in an official statement issued by the Montenegrin War Office today. Heavy artillery duels are in progress. The Austrians' guns were very severe.

BRITISH FLEET ON COAST STIRS WASHINGTON

By International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—The activity of the British fleet of warships patrolling the Atlantic coast is causing officials here some concern. They fear an overt act by one of them, such as the searching of the steamer Zealandia, may precipitate a situation which will demand action by the United States. The fact that two British cruisers chased the Danish steamer Vinland on route to secure American registry, all the way from New York to New port News, and had to be warned to keep outside of the three-mile limit, has shown officials that the ceaseless traffic of the United States is far from being safe from interference.

With Halifax selected as the port to which vessels seized are to be delivered, and with the British squadron apparently blockading, to all intents and purposes, the Atlantic seaboard, the possibilities of an incident arising which will result in serious trouble are far from remote.

It is believed here that this government will be compelled to make representations to Great Britain on the subject. More than a year ago the attention of the British embassy was unofficially directed to the unpleasant criticism that was being heard about the activity of British cruisers that were holding up all vessels leaving New York harbor, and the cruisers were withdrawn for a time.

It is now expected that the revenue cutters Onondaga, Canandaigua and Seminole, which are on duty off the Virginia Capes and between New York, will be ordered to keep watch on the British cruisers and see that they maintain their distance well outside of the three-mile limit. If the cutters prove insufficient it is believed that the destroyers will be defailed to aid.

Meanwhile the United States is expected to ask the British embassy here to see that the steamer Winnebago, owned by the American Transatlantic Company, is not interfered with on her voyage from Buenos Ayres to New York as requested by President Wagner of the line.

Norwegian Steamer Is Reported Sunk

LONDON, Nov. 15.—The Admiralty announced today the sinking of the 1,888 ton Norwegian steamship Wacousta. It is supposed the Wacousta was sunk by a submarine. She was on her way to Vladivostok from Nova Scotia with war supplies.

Italy Demands Reprisals for Raid on Verona

ROME, Nov. 15.—The air raid on Verona, which resulted in the death of 40 civilians and the wounding of 49 others, has intensified the bitterness felt in Italy against Austria.

The Idea Nationale demands prompt reprisals, suggesting that all Germans in Italy be interned in concentration camps, that Austro-German property be confiscated and that 25,000 Austrian prisoners be held as hostages.

As soon as he heard of the aerial raid upon Verona, Pope Benedict directed Cardinal Gasparri, papal Secretary of State, to telegraph to Cardinal Bacilieri, archbishop of Verona, asking details and instructing him to do everything possible to relieve the sufferers.

A REVERE BEACH LADY NOW HAPPY

Mrs. Nellie Hegan, of Oak Island Street, Says Plant Juice Has Restored Her Health.

The most important thing that a woman can do for herself and about which she is often very neglectful, is to watch the condition of her stomach and bowels. The weary eyes, the bad breath, the frequent headaches, the sore back, the lassitude and loss of appetite, the result of sleeplessness, the growing irritableness and nervousness, the cold feet and hands, the lack of appetite; all these symptoms are plain monitors of a bad stomach, deranged bowels, and given a general name is—nervous debility.

Medicine to stop stomach indigestion and dyspepsia; my stomach filled up with gas and caused me intense pain and was in such a terrible condition that I could not keep any solid food in it at all. I was nervous and restless, could not sleep at night and felt weak and miserable in the morning. I could never eat any meat or vegetables, and had lived on plain food, lost 40 pounds in weight, had headaches, dizzy spells, my condition was sallow and I has, given up all hope of ever being well again, when I read in the papers of your Plant Juice and thought I may as well try it. I am glad I did for the Plant Juice Man has in fact done everything claimed for it. BOSTON POLICE SEARCHING FOR FUGITIVE HOBBS IN THIS CITY

On the strength of this information, the Boston police said today they thought Hobbs might have eluded the searchers in Atkinson and returned to Boston, Sunday. He was last seen at dawn Sunday morning, when he escaped from the shack as his pursuers were about to capture him.

BOSTON POLICE AT WORK.

It is considered possible by the police, however, that the third man in the party, the one who posed as a policeman may have returned to Boston, taken the suitcase and left the keys.

A search for Hobbs in Boston was pushed today with vigor, as a result of the landlady's story.

But in the meantime the search in the woods in Atkinson was not relaxed. A posse of armed men, led by High Sheriff Spinney of Portsmouth, N. H., scoured the woods. Sheriff Spinney is in charge because the woods lie for the most part across the New Hampshire line.

Charles Hobbs, brother of Henry, meanwhile had told his story to City Marshal John J. Mara of Haverhill. Hobbs later appeared in court on a charge of abduction, and New Hampshire officers were waiting to take him back in that State on extradition papers if his case had been disposed of.

While Charles Hobbs' case was awaiting disposition at Haverhill, his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hobbs, engaged former District Attorney W. Scott Peters to defend him. When the case was called, Mr. Peters asked for continuance until tomorrow morning on nominal bail. Judge Wise, accordingly fixed bail at $1,500, and counsel for the case as requested. The prisoner at once set about securing bondsmen.

CHARLES HOBBS' STORY.

Here is the story of the kidnaping as told by Charles Hobbs:

"I did this for my brother. Henry and fifty acres and a good place in Atkinson, N. H. He had a good chance to sell it. At the time the offer was coming, but at the last minute when the deeds were made out and everything was ready he refused to sign the papers.

"The abduction was planned to get her to sign the deed. She was a very dreadful woman and a dangerous one, so decided to have a man along posing as a policeman to impress her. There was only one man dressed as a policeman.

"We went to Portsmouth and got her and took her to the place in Atkinson. The policeman's part was a big man and certainly knew his business. He did about all the work. After it was all over I took him to the Haverhill railroad station, and he took a train for Boston.

"Friday night Hobbs visited his parents in Haverhill, coming from Boston. He told Charles, his youngest brother, who drives a taxi in Haverhill, that he wanted him to drive him to Portsmouth Saturday afternoon. The details of the trip were arranged in advance.

Henry and the "policeman" drove to Portsmouth to the home of Alonzo H. Jenne, where Mrs. Hobbs worked as a housekeeper. There the "policeman" took off the overcoat, replaced the soft hat with a helmet and went into the Jenne house. He told Mrs. Hobbs that he had come from Mr. Ernest L. Cupill, her attorney in her divorce suit, who wished to see her right away.

HUSBAND CHOKED HER.

She hurried to the taxi and stepped in. It started off at top speed. It was then that she realized that Henry Hobbs was in the car. When she tried to scream he grabbed her by the throat, she said, choking back her cries.

When they arrived at the shack, Hobbs drove her inside and the taxi drove off. She found the doors and windows all barricaded. Her husband lighted a lamp. He told her he had an offer of $3,000 for the Providence Hill "ranch," and she would have to sign over to him all her rights in the property.

The New Hampshire sheriffs motored in Haverhill, where Cooley was arrested. They continued along to Providence Hill, hunting for the "ranch house." It was after 2 o'clock that they finally found it.

Hobbs finally opened the door. As the officers dashed into the house he slipped out, knocking down the chauffeur, who tried to capture him. He ran home to get his rifle, but carried his revolver in his flight.

¶ When you buy an Overcoat simply because it is $15, you are buying the price and not the Overcoat.

¶ It is perfectly proper to put a limit of $15 on your expenditure, but why put a limit on the Overcoat?

HAPPENINGS IN BOSTON SOCIETY

MRS. FREDERICK C. DUMAINE A HOME-MAKER

MISS MARGARET WELLINGTON TO MAKE HER DEBUT TODAY

Mrs. Frederick C. Dumaine of Concord, a leader in Greater Boston society, a worker for suffrage and a home-maker. Photo by Bachrach.

One of the most interesting and attractive of the Concord group of Greater Boston's smart set is Mrs. Frederick C. Dumaine, who at the recent suffrage parade carried one of the famous "Victory" banners.

Mrs. Dumaine, though the mother of seven children ranging from two to sixteen years, finds time for many varied social duties and for a great deal of work for the suffrage cause.

In the latter organization she is a member of the ways and means committee and is the leading suffrage worker in Concord. Mrs. Dumaine besides being a society leader and foremost in many charitable activities, is an ideal exponent of suffragism as that she has won many honors as a home-maker in her capacity as the mother of seven children.

Debutante presentations are quite the order of the week, the first function coming today when Miss Margaret Wellington makes her debut. Miss Wellington is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Baldwin Wellington of Chestnut street, and will be introduced to society at a large reception and dance at her home.

An unusual feature of the affair is that the tea tables will be in charge of sub-debutantes, the Misses Virginia and Linda Wellington, the younger daughters of the house.

WILSON ORDERS WEDDING CRITIC REINSTATED

By International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—President Wilson this afternoon ordered Postmaster-General Burleson to reinstate in office "without further parleying" George Burkitt, assistant postmaster at Wilmington, Ill. Burkitt was summarily dismissed by Postmaster A. M. Kloepfer, of that place, because he was alleged to have said that the President should have waited longer following the death of Mrs. Wilson before announcing his engagement to Mrs. Galt.

Early today Secretary to the President Tumulty announced that the President had requested Burleson to reinstate Burkitt if there were no other charges against him.

During the morning Burleson held a conference with his assistant, D. O. Roper, who rejected Burkitt's appeal for reinstatement. It is understood that, following that conference, Burleson communicated with the President. It was then that the second announcement was made by Secretary Tumulty that the President had ordered the reinstatement of Burkitt with no "influences" attached.

LA FOLLETTE'S SECRET BACKER STEPHENSON

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—At the age of eighty-six years, former Senator Isaac Stephenson has issued a volume of recollections which for the first time bares the secrets of his relations with Robert M. La Follette and the Wisconsin idea.

Former Senator Stephenson discloses his financing of La Follette's political ambitions. He narrates facts which he steadfastly refused to give out when La Follette attempted to oust him from the Senate.

He relates how he spent more than $300,000 on La Follette and how he has contributed probably $1,000,000 to the Republican party. His describes La Follette weeping with joy when he received the first $2,500.

Ever since the Progressive movement in Wisconsin set the pace for other States the methods by which it gained its impetus have remained a mystery.

The mystery, according to Mr. Stephenson's narrative, is no longer a mystery at all. While Senator La Follette was working zealously on the drive that Isaac Stephenson in the background was by frequent drafts upon his check book providing weapons with which the old order in the Republican party was being overthrown and the new established.

PLAN INQUIRY ON DIET OF WOMEN WHO WORK

Plans for an investigation of the food eaten by the working women and girls of Boston were discussed at a conference today at the Women's Educational and Industrial Union rooms, No. 264 Boylston street.

The unique inquiry is to be conducted by the research department of the union, co-operating with the division of hygiene of the State health department. The official investigators will be assisted by young women of several colleges in and around Boston.

Dr. Selskar M. Gunn of the State health department at today's conference declared that health boards were now turning their attention toward the diet of the individual, and that diet was a matter of fundamental importance in health. He said there were an increasing number of pellagra cases in Massachusetts, due to malnutrition.

Dean Sarah Louise Arnold of Simmons College, declared the matter of investigating the food of working girls and women had been discussed at the State Charities convention at Pittsfield.

"This is a very serious subject, not only in regard to working women, but also for girls' clubs and professional women," said Dean Arnold. "Most of them do a certain amount of home cooking, and little attention has been paid to educating the girl what to eat and how and where to buy their food.

"Many of these girls pay from 100 to 500 per cent. more for food because they buy in such small quantities.

"There should be an attempt to teach the girls what kind of food they should buy, to supplement what they eat in restaurants. The question is not a family one, it is an individual problem.

"An inquiry may show some kind of co-operation by which the girls can buy their food more cheaply. Girls who have the least to buy with now have to pay the most for food. It should be possible for girls to live well even on a small salary. The matter of higher wages is an entirely different subject."

Another speaker was Dr. Lucille Eaton, who is directing the plans for the investigation.

Real Baby for Boston Opera? Look Up Law

Will a real live baby fill the "baby role" in "Madame Butterfly" which is to be produced at the Boston Opera House Wednesday night?

The State Board of Labor and Industries was asked the question today, and the board has submitted it to its counsel, E. F. Wallace, who is looking up the law bearing on the matter.

In past performances in Boston of the famous Puccini opera, the prima donnas have always caddled imitations of the real live thing in the infant line. The baby doesn't have to do any singing, not even any crying. But everybody admits that a real baby instead of a doll would be to advantage.

Miss Miura, a Japanese singer, is to have the leading woman's role in the opera, and if the law permits, she is to carry real live Japanese baby, loaned for the occasion by its Boston parents.

Syndicates Go to Aid of U. S. Ships

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—Plans are under way by a New York syndicate to offer relief for American importers whose goods are tied up in Rotterdam by the British "blockade."

A syndicate headed by Jules E. Bernard of Bernard, Judge & Co. is considering the chartering of American-owned steamships flying the American flag and manned exclusively by Americans to bring about $10,000,000 of this merchandise to America.

The effect will be to bring the issue between the United States and Great Britain to a head. If Great Britain seizes the American vessels after they leave Rotterdam, American importers, it is contended, would have the basis for strong claims against the British government, and would be in a position to appeal for more vigorous action on the part of the State Department.

Mr. Bernard has conferred with Counsellor Polk of the State Department, but Mr. Polk declines to say what action the United States would take in the event of one of the steamships being intercepted by a British cruiser.

No effort will be made to run a blockade. No effort will be made to enter a German port. Mr. Bernard insists that an American steamer cannot be legally prevented from entering the neutral ports of Rotterdam and clearing for the United States with a cargo of American owned merchandise.

Plan War Collection.

Between the halves of the Harvard-Yale game next Saturday a collection will be taken for the benefit of the American ambulance, the Harvard unit and for Polish relief.

U. S. OFFICIALS ASK DELAY ON BOMB PLOT

By International News Service.

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—Assistant United States District Attorney John C. Knox appeared before Federal Judge Foster today and asked that the cases of the men indicted in the so-called German bomb plot be held up until superseding indictments could be filed.

The indictments returned last week against Robert Fay, Walter Schois and others charged them with conspiring to blow up ships at sea.

As a result of the fact that damage would have been inflicted upon foreign ships on the high seas outside of the jurisdiction, it is believed that the accusations against Fay and his companions will be changed.

Fay was taken to the office of United States District Attorney Marshall just before noon, where he was in conference with Mr. Marshall, Mr. Knox and William Flynn, chief of the United States Secret Service, for a long time.

Fay made a statement which is reported to be of such importance that it may result in the United States government asking the recall of certain diplomats.

Reports on Fay's latest statement will be laid before President Wilson and United States Attorney General Gregory at once.

Schois is also expected to make a statement which will give the government evidence against Max Breitung and Herbert Kinzho, who are on $25,000 bail.

This was the last day for the indicted men to appear before the Federal authorities and change their pleas, but all proceedings were postponed until Wednesday at the request of the United States officials.

CHILDREN TO HAVE PART IN THE CHRISTMAS BASKET GIVING

Christmas is the festival of the children. Which simply means that at Christmas time, even grown-ups are apt to become little children again, and have just as much fun as though their Christmases numbered only six or a dozen, instead of forty or so.

Christmas is the one day of the year when every little boy and every little girl has a right to expect a good time, and especially a good dinner.

And the best way to have a good time and to enjoy a good dinner is to know that you have done your share to make others have good times and good dinners.

Wherefore, as your lawyer uncle would say:

The Christmas Basket Editor wants all the little boys and girls in New England to join in the Campaign of Happiness that is under way. It is a campaign to see to it that as few people as possible go hungry Christmas Day.

A whole Christmas basket costs $2. Some grown folks can give $50, or $25, or $5, or perhaps only a dollar Christmas basket.

Only the very luckiest little children can give a whole basket, for $2 is a lot of money when it must be saved up in pennies.

But every one of the little boys and girls in New England can give SOMETHING toward a Christmas basket; may be a dollar, or fifty cents, or a dime, or even a penny.

There is a story in a certain Book about a widow who gave a "mite," which was probably something like our penny, to the poor folks, when it was all she had to give; and the Book says that she, giving her mite from her small purse, was more blessed therefor than those who gave from their plenty.

EVERY LITTLE DOES A LOT.

The AMERICAN'S Campaign of Happiness is designed to make happy not only those who RECEIVE the Christmas dinners, but those who GIVE them. And the Christmas Basket Editor gets as much joy out of receiving a penny from a chubby little fist as he does a check from an older hand.

Furthermore, the editor is prepared to promise and strictly guarantee that every little good girl who gives a penny or a nickel or a dime will be glad of it on Christmas Day. They will enjoy their own dinners more for knowing others are also enjoying dinners.

If two dollars buys a whole basket, just look at it this way:

One dollar buys a chicken to go in a basket.

Half a dollar buys half a chicken.

A quarter buys half a dozen juicy oranges to go in the baskets.

Even a penny will do its part; will buy, you might say, that first crisp, delicious bite from the juicy end of a cranstick.

It will take a great many pennies to provide a proper number of Christmas baskets. Last year $12,000 went to provide 7,000 baskets. This year the editor hopes there will be more money and more baskets. Already $670 has come in. Notice among the contributors Katherine and Barbara Hastings. They are two little girls who have the honor to be the first children to do their share—and a very fine share it is.

HOW TO SEND MONEY.

HOW TO BE SLIM

If you are too fat and want to reduce your weight 15 or 20 pounds, don't starve and weaken your system, or think you must always be laughed at on account of your fat, but go to any good druggist, and get a box of Oil of Korein capsules, take one after each meal and one before retiring at night.

Weigh yourself once a week and note what a pleasant and reliable method this is for removing superfluous fat from any part of the body.

It costs little, is absolutely harmless and I am sure a week's trial should convince anyone that it is unnecessary to be burdened with even a single pound of unsightly fat. —Advertisement.

U. S. To Protest British Action in Coast Blockade

By International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—The practice of British cruisers lying off American ports and stopping vessels, American and foreign, will be made the basis for a protest to Great Britain, according to authoritative information obtained today.

State Department officials are much displeased at the action of these cruisers. The latest instance is a pursuit of the Danish steamer Vinland, whose captain says that the cruiser followed him well within the three-mile limit of territorial waters. This is now being investigated.

The blockade of American ports by British cruisers has already been characterized by President Wilson as "unfriendly and offensive."

Earlier in the war British cruisers were withdrawn from Sandy Hook and Japanese cruisers from Honolulu at the request of the United States.

High Canadian Peak May Be Mt. Cavell

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 15.—With the view of perpetuating the name of Miss Edith Cavell, martyred English nurse, the proposal is made to change the name of Mt. Sir Richard McBride, Premier of British Columbia, originated the idea and it has been taken up by several patriotic societies on the Pacific coast.

ORDER AUTOIST JAILED; HELD AS DRUNK

Charles Urbon of No. 26 Gates street, South Boston, was given a jail sentence in South Boston Court today when he appeared to answer a charge of operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor.

A charge of drunkenness was filed, but on the other charge, Judge Logan imposed a $10 fine and two weeks in jail. Urbon, on appeal, was held in $500.

Urbon's attorney, James F. Creed, argued that his client was not drunk at the time of the accident. "He had only had a few glasses of beer," he said.

Judge Logan asked Patrolman Kuhlman, who made the arrest:

"Is there any doubt that this man was drunk?"

Patrolman Kuhlman said: "No, your honor. Absolutely no doubt of it. If this man was not drunk I never saw a drunken man in my life."

Urbon was arrested as the result of a collision Thursday evening between his automobile and one driven by Frederick Brugner, in which Urbon received minor injuries, Brugner escaping unhurt.

DUPLESSIS IS REARRESTED IN AUTO CASE

Louis Duplessis of Paris street, Manchora, who was acquitted on a charge of driving an automobile while intoxicated, in the Cambridge Court, last week, was today rearrested at his home in Marlboro on an indictment charging reckless driving.

The charges against Duplessis grew out of an automobile accident, in Worcester, October 17, and when Duplessis was acquitted in Cambridge, last week, Judge Raymond dismissed the jury which had found him not guilty. East Cambridge court attaches said no jury had been dismissed in such a fashion for years.

Duplessis was arrested today in Marlboro by Deputy Sheriff A. J. Adams and was brought to Cambridge.

W. H. Bartlett of Worcester was driving the automobile with which Duplessis' machine was in collision.

He became ill, the father carried him to the Frost hospital. All last night the doctors worked to save his life.

At 1 o'clock this morning the baby went into convulsions and in a little after 3 o'clock the convulsions ceased, and the baby died.

ALLIED FLEET READY TO MEET GREEK ACTION

By C. P. BERTELLI.

Staff Correspondent of the International News Service.

PARIS, Nov. 15.—The European chancelleries expect this week events of tremendous importance, which are expected to clarify the situation totally, as to Greece's plans and Italy's intentions.

For the present public interest is diverted from Bulgaria, though only temporarily.

Statesmen and diplomats with whom I today discussed the Greek situation find no comfort in the latest news from Athens and Salonica. They look attempts to pessimistic regarding King Constantine's nebulous attitude.

The allies' good will toward Greece hinges on whether she will disavow the threat of one of her new ministers to disarm and intern the Serbian, French and British troops who are now massing battles ready to thrust back across the Greek border.

Almost correspondents warn the French government that the Greek cabinet has considered this question. The allies, it is said, will do well to assume that the decision has gone against them.

From the viewpoint of the allies, a piece of bad news is that concerning the visit the other day to King Constantine of a German military commission.

The Journal prints an Athens dispatch stating that a powerful Anglo-French battleship squadron is being held constantly under steam at Malta.

Announcing the 7-point gum

The most modern factory in the world has produced a new brand of chewing gum for you. No gum, we believe, ever before had so much care put into its manufacture. This care is to insure the six features listed below.

The 7th point will not be announced for the present.

1 Crowded with Flavor

First of all we gave our attention to flavor. The highest grade of pure extracts was naturally needed.

After securing the flavor, a still greater problem remained. How were we going to drive that flavor fairly through and through —so that it stays in the gum? Right there was one great stumbling-block in the production of a high-grade chewing gum.

It is a stumbling-block which we have removed through an exclusive process which makes the Sterling Flavor permeate each stick—makes the gum, in short, "crowded with flavor."

And you have your choice of two flavors —cool, refreshing peppermint or cinnamon—cinnamon that is fascinating in its delicious spiciness.

Sterling Peppermint Gum comes in a red package, while Cinnamon is clad in a jacket of blue.

2 Velvety Body— NO GRIT

Next we set out to produce a gum that was absolutely free from grit.

This was a matter of refining and re-refining the chicle—a long, tedious process. But worth the trouble as every gum chewer will agree.

So Sterling Gum has a Velvety Body—NO GRIT. That is point 2. Rather important, too, isn't it?

3 Crumble-Proof

Heat, cold and humidity do their best to make gum crumbly. And they have their way very often, as you no doubt know.

We decided that Sterling Gum must be "crumble-proof."

After long experiment we finally made Sterling Gum by a new process. We—well, this isn't to be a lecture on science. The point is this: No matter when or where you buy Sterling Gum, you will find it "crumble-proof." You will find that each stick quickly becomes a velvety-bodied confection.

4 Sterling Purity

"Purity" is too often a vague claim. Sterling Purity is an actual fact. That means extreme purity of all ingredients—extreme cleanliness of plant and employes.

Just one incident to explain our ideas on the subject.

All gums use pulverized sugar—the same pulverized sugar that you put over your berries and cream in the morning. Clean, isn't it? Of course.

But not as clean as we want it. So we buy our sugar in granulated form and do our own pulverizing. The difference is not apparent to the eye, but, nevertheless, it is there.

It is attention to details like this which we sum up in Point 4, "Sterling Purity."

5 From a Daylight Factory

A frivolous friend who was looking at a picture of the Sterling Factory the other day, remarked, "It's a wonder you wouldn't make your gum in a greenhouse!"

During every working hour, the daylight streams through the broad, high windows on all four sides of our factory.

There are no dingy corners. Cleanliness everywhere. This environment, too, naturally has a wholesome effect on our employes.

6 Untouched by Hands

But Sterling purity and a daylight factory need this Sterling 6th point to provide a genuine hygienic safeguard.

A company rule makes each employe wear spic-and-span uniforms and caps—and gloves of white. These white gloves are fresh-laundered every morning.

That insures Sterling Gum Point 6, "Untouched by Hands."

(7) What?

The 7th point of Sterling excellence we are keeping in reserve. We will not make it public for the present.

But that 7th point is there for a very good reason. It is perhaps the most important of all 7 points of Sterling excellence.

Let's see if you find Point 7 in the gum.

THREE COUNTRIES INVOLVED IN DE KAY'S DEAL FOR MEXICAN ARMS

PARIS, Nov. 15.—Behind the arrest in London of John Wesley De Kay of New York on a charge of fraud made by the Belgian authorities lies one of the most romantic episodes of De Kay's picturesque career.

De Kay's last activity before the war began was as General Huerta's European financial agent, when he tried to float Huerta bonds to buy munitions. He succeeded in buying in Spain 15,000 Spanish made Mausers and fifteen million cartridges, paying for them in Huerta bonds. He tried to ship the munitions to Vera Cruz, but failed.

A year ago the rifles and cartridges which he had stored in the Spanish government arsenal—special permit of the Spanish Minister of War "for safekeeping" the permit could be sold to the Belgian Minister of the Colonies, M. Couch, for 2,250,000 francs ($450,000), the munitions to go to the Belgian Congo.

M. Couch accepted De Kay's statement that the munitions belonged to him personally. De Kay stating that the Huerta bonds which he had held and had paid to the manufacturer for the munitions were his own and not the property of the Mexican government.

M. Couch had signed the contract for the purchase and De Kay had asked the Spanish Minister of War for the release of the munitions for shipment to the Congo when General Carranza's representative in Paris protested to the Belgian government stating that the munitions belonged not to De Kay or even to Huerta, but to the Mexican people as a whole, since they had been paid for with bonds issued in the name of the people.

Carranza's representative assured the Belgian government that Carranza would soon be in power and would demand the return of the munitions or an indemnity.

The Belgians hesitated, the Carranzistas protested to the Spanish government and the Spanish Minister of War, it was announced, would not release the munitions from the government arsenal until the Spanish courts had determined to whom they belonged.

Interminable negotiations resulted and lasted several months until the other day somebody in the Belgian government discovered that 2,000,000 francs already had been paid toward the sum which had been promised to De Kay. The investigation followed and De Kay was arrested in London.

BIG SUPPLY OF HUERTA BONDS.

On his Paris staff was M. Chartier. M. Chartier was not arrested, as reported in London, but was called before the prosecuting authorities in Paris, questioned and ordered to remain within the jurisdiction of the court until the trial of De Kay is concluded.

It is not clear where the 300,000 francs went and apparently it is a matter for speculation. It is suggested that De Kay expended this money in Spain in a vain attempt to obtain the release of the munitions.

It is known that De Kay tried frantically to buy the identical quantity and quality of munitions in the United States in an effort to deliver them to Belgium and fulfil his contract and escape a charge of fraud. All his efforts failed, American manufacturers being unable to make the Spanish model Mausers.

De Kay, who has a vast stock of Huerta bonds, always assured his intimates that the bonds would be made good by Carranza because the powerful arms manufacturers, the Vickers-Armstrong firm and the Cartoucherie Française, had taken lots of them as payment for munitions.

DeKay is one of the most picturesque figures in Paris and is highly rated along with deposed monarchs, ex-Presidents of Latin American republics, Jack Johnson, and Ted Sloan as one of the eminent members of the distinguished company of Paris refugees from the prejudices of other lands.

He had smart offices over Tod Sloan's bar in the Rue Daunou and kept up the magnificent Chateau de Coucy, between Laon and Soissons, until the Germans took it for the Bavarian general headquarters. De Kay says he learned from a friend in Germany that the Chateau had been sacked of his collection of paintings and valuable furniture.

He had a handsome house at Auteuil called the Villa Montmorency, numerous automobiles, dined lavishly at the leading hotels and restaurants and occasionally lived in a suite at a fashionable hotel.

AN "AMERICAN INDIAN."

He is known to have withdrawn a very large sum from his account at the Banque de France a few weeks ago. He has important collections of securities in safe deposit boxes in London banks.

He was of a Napoleonic majesty of appearance during his afternoon strolls on the boulevards, wore very long hair and described himself as a facsimile of the American Indian head on the United States gold coins. He wore a wide gray cowboy hat, a frock coat and spats and carried a gold headed cane.

On the occasion of ex-President Diaz's funeral De Kay tried to get relatives to permit him to deliver a glowing funeral oration at the grave, but the relatives declined on the ground that the body was not to be buried in a grave, but left in a church vault.

De Kay had his oration translated and published in the principal prominent Paris newspapers, where it attracted considerable notice as an excellent sample of memorial eloquence.

De Kay's literary baggage was considerable. He had recently published books on love, philosophy and travels and is said to show a talent which is in no way contemptible.

A fellow passenger with De Kay the last time he crossed from New York on the Mauretania said that De Kay invited all the steerage passengers to dine in the first class saloon on the very night that his Mexican packing concern failed.

SENT GOLD TO STEERAGE.

The captain prevented the realization of the glorious party, so De Kay sent 1,400 gold sovereigns to the 1,400 steerage passengers awaiting below with an expression of his regret that he could not entertain them at dinner.

De Kay lately had passed as retired and devoting himself exclusively to writing on philosophy. His brother, Louis, lived obscurely in Paris and was supposed to be De Kay's business representative.

Although born in New Hampton, Iowa, John Wesley DeKay has been prominent in the East. He is a member of several Boston clubs. In New York he represented himself as being connected with the Mexican National Packing Company.

DeKay is under a United States indictment in Providence, R. I., for aiding and abetting Edward P. Metcalf in misapplication of funds of the Atlantic National Bank. He was never arrested in this case but his brother, Henry B. DeKay, was arrested and convicted on a similar charge. Mexican National Packing Company bonds figured largely in the accusations against DeKay in connection with the alleged looting of the bank.

Why Tolerate Catarrh?

You have noticed, no doubt, that a cold aggravates nasal catarrh, and the flow of mucous amazes you that such objectionable matter could find lodgment in your head. To ignore this catarrh when the cold subsides is wrong because it continues to slowly injure the delicate linings of the nasal passages and clog them up.

To correct catarrh, cleanse the nostrils frequently with a solution of warm water and salt, inset vaseline or retiring, and take a spoonful of Scott's Emulsion after meals for one month. Scott's acts through the blood to feed the tissues, and contains soothing glycerine to check the inflammation and heal the sensitive membranes.

Scott's is pleasant to take.

Why Not Have a Clear Complexion?

It is impossible to have a clear smooth skin when the kidneys are clogged and are weak and overworked. Dispel the waste and poisonous matter by taking two teaspoonfuls of roummalite in half a glass of water before breakfast each morning. You will be surprised to see how quickly sallow skin and blotchy complexion disappears. From any druggist you can get roummalite, which act on the liver, bowels and kidneys.—Advertisement.

Wins Newsboy Scholarship for Harvard

Bennett Solomon, seventeen, of No. 21 Auburn street, West End, a newsboy, has been awarded the annual scholarship to Harvard College by the Boston Newsboys' Protective Union. The official announcement was made today. He is the youngest newsboy who has been awarded a Harvard scholarship. He has been in this country only seven years.

While attending the Boston Latin School, from which he was graduated this year, he sold papers before and after school hours. Young Solomon was born in 1898 in a small town in Galicia. When ten years old his family left for America. His school career began a week after he landed in Boston at the Eliot school, North End.

In three years he was prepared to enter the Boston Latin Public School. He expects to be a full-fledged doctor some day.

Harvard Crimson Champions Women

"When Professor Scott Nearing lectured at Harvard Friday women were not admitted and the Harvard Crimson has something to say on the matter today.

"Women, though escorted by members of the university, were refused admission," asserts the Crimson. "And in spite of the fact that there were unoccupied seats were obliged to listen to the lecture from the adjoining hallway." The Crimson suggests that some of the restrictions on lectures and similar events to be relaxed.

Call for More Heat for Harvard Seniors

The Harvard Crimson today opened the annual campaign for more heat in the Senior dormitories. Harvard Seniors have long complained that their rooms are warmed but sparingly, and that such heat as is furnished goes to sleep for the night along 10 o'clock.

"Some day," opines the Crimson, "it may be hoped that dwellers in the yard will not have to plead for elementary comfort. Elsewhere certainly and desirably, they who refuse this a demand will one day enjoy heat in abundance."

DR. WASHINGTON TO BE BURIED WEDNESDAY

TUSKEGEE, Ala., Nov. 15.—The funeral of Booker T. Washington, recognized leader of the negro people of America and principal of Tuskegee Institute for Negroes, who died here, will be held Wednesday morning at the institute.

Hardening of the arteries, following a nervous breakdown, caused his death soon after his arrival here from New York.

Although he had been in failing health for several months, his condition became serious last week while he was in New York. He then realized the end was near, but was determined to make the long trip South.

Accompanied by his wife, his secretary and a physician, he left New York for Tuskegee Friday afternoon.

His last public appearance was at the Churches in New York, where he delivered a lecture on October 25.

A widow, three children and four grandchildren survive. Booker H. Washington, a brother, is superintendent of industries at Tuskegee Institute.

He was born in slavery in a log cabin of one room near Hale's Ford, Va. He was the son of a white planter and a colored woman.

After the close of the war, while working in the coal mines of West Virginia for the support of his mother, he heard of Hampton Institute. With a few cents in his pocket he started out to earn his way there. He was graduated in 1875, and, after teaching in West Virginia and studying a year in Wayland Seminary in Washington, built Tuskegee Institute, which he made a model institution, of which he began his work as principal in 1881.

Harvard University conferred upon him in 1896 the degree of master of arts—the first instance in which any New England college has given a colored man an honorary degree. In 1901 Dartmouth College honored him with the degree of doctor of laws.

5 Children Ill from Effects of Mysterious Drug

HAVERHILL, Nov. 15.—Five of the six children of Mr. and Mrs. John Dunn of Rowley are at the City Hospital suffering from a mysterious poison, the nature of which physicians are unable to determine.

City Physician Crittenden stated that the children had swallowed some sort of an irritant poison, but as yet he has been unable to learn what it is. They range from two to fifteen years in age.

Realty Man Found Guilty of Larceny

Francis J. Hartshorne, 60, a real estate man living on Cabot street, Newtonville, was found guilty today in the Newton court on a charge of stealing $750 from Mrs. Lulu C. Thompson of West Newton. The case was continued until December 28 for sentence. Mrs. Thompson is colored. She testified that last July she gave Hartshorn a check for $900 to buy a house for her and that he had returned only $150 after failing to buy a house.

800 NEWSBOYS SEE BIG FILM SHOW TONIGHT

Don't try to walk down Summer street, along about 7 o'clock tonight. You will not be able to get through the crowd, for 800 newsboys will be assembling there.

Did you ever see 800 boys in a bunch? It's worth seeing. These chaps are to march from the Boston AMERICAN office to the Boston Theatre, where as guests of D. W. Griffith, producer of "The Birth of a Nation," they will witness the opening run of "Triangle Films" in Boston.

Mr. Griffith, Thomas H. Ince and Mack Sennett are directing the production of the Triangle Films.

"Happy" Rubinovitch, the King of the Newsboys, with Brenner's Newsboy's Band, will head the match to the theatre from Summer street. Eight hundred seats have been assigned to the boys.

The principal film of the first night is "The Lamb," with Douglas Fairbanks in the role of the aforesaid animal. Fairbanks starred in "The Club" on the stage in Boston many years ago and is no stranger to Boston audiences. In "The Club" he played the part of a handsome young man who grew up to be a bear cat. In "The Lamb" he does something of the same nature.

The Lamb gets into difficulty with Navajo and other Indians out in Arizona, and after a sequence of adventures that involve scrapping, bad monsters and the like he apathizes the Indians all over the landscape with a fatal fist campaign and then the Fair-banks is the only white man left in the Indian country. Then he falls in love with the daughter of the chief of the Navajos and returns home and marries her.

All the newsboys will be assembling there.

Remarkable Head-On Picture of Guernsey's Sensational 55-Yard Field Goal

The photograph above shows Otis Guernsey, Yale's sensational fullback, making a successful drop kick from the fifty-five yard line in Saturday's game against Princeton. The ball went true to its mark, skimmed the cross-bar, wavered a moment, and then toppled over. Guernsey's wonderful feat equals the Eastern drop-kicking record established by J. V. Cowling of Harvard against Princeton thirty-two years ago to the day. The arrow points to Guernsey, while ball may be seen just clearing the bar.

WELSH WILL NOT RETIRE UNTIL DEFEATED

By DAMON RUNYON.

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—Freddie Welsh says he is going to engage in a few more battles and then retire; but the chances are he will stick to the ring until he gets a plastering and drops the lightweight crown.

Abe Attell has been in and out of retirement so often since he lost the featherweight championship that no one can keep track of him. He is either in or out, right now, but we cannot say for certain just which it is.

Old Cy Young, one of the best pitchers of all time, stuck around in the game until he had shattered the record for continuous big league hurling service, and could have retired even then in a blaze of glory, but he hung on until his pitching was an antique jest.

Christy Mathewson, mound monarch for many a year, and generally accounted the greatest in the history of the game, may suddenly quit if he really believes that he is all through—but we doubt it.

He has considerable money, is a well-educated, fine-grained fellow, but he has been in baseball a long time, and if he does not remain in baseball until they gently but firmly remove his uniform from him, we shall be much surprised.

Mathewson would probably make a good baseball manager, and there are numerous things he can do outside of baseball, but it is a good bet that he will stick as an active player as long as he can get the ball up to the plate.

Very, very few ball players voluntarily retire. Bill Lange, the Chicago outfielder, quit at the height of his career, and so did "Tillie" Shafer, the Giant third baseman, but that about completes the list.

Harry McCormick, Mike Donlin and Jimmy Callahan are players of the past decade who quit for a time, and then made successful come-backs.

BOXING BRIEFS and GOSSIP

LOOKS as if there will be another pudgy house at the Arena tomorrow night for the Young Saylor-Charley White scrap. Their midsummer melee was a very merry one and the two tidy lightweights should pull a chipper comeback.

BOSTON "sports" have made White a 4 to 5, and, in some cases, a 10 to 7 favorite over Saylor. Those odds look out of line; it should be even money.

A WEEK from Tuesday night Ted (Kid) Lewis and Jimmy Duffy of Lockport, N. Y., are carded to have it out at the Atlas A. A. Duffy is now in the midst of a comeback campaign and he's doing pretty nicely, thank you.

DUFFY, when right, is a heavy lightweight, or a light welter, as good as they come. He's full and rangy and really grew too heavy to operate in the 135-pound division eighteen months ago. Jimmy owns a left hand that's a rattling rapid one; totes about a fairly stiff left wallop; is plenty fast enough and has always been considered a good general.

DUFFY hasn't been very active for the past six or nine months, in fact, had a narrow escape from being forced to pass up the ring entirely last Spring. He got mixed up in an accident and came within an ace of losing a leg. But he's right again, 'tis said.

"KID" WILLIAMS, the bantam champion, is in strict training for his title battle with Franklin Burns of Jersey City, down in New Orleans. As the "Kid" has started slipping, Burns stands an excellent chance of giving him equally as big a surprise as Johnny Ertle, the St. Paul phenom, slipped the champion some six weeks ago.

A PERT BOUT IF LIGHTWEIGHTS REPEAT

If Millburn (Young) Saylor, the rugged Indianapolis lightweight, and Charley White, Chicago's noted 135-pounder, repeat their boisterous bout of mid-Summer at the Atlas A. A. tomorrow night, the members of our popular Italic institution will be treated to a show that will completely put in the shade the recent Lewis-Saylor and Lewis-Mandot numbers.

Last Summer Saylor-White engagement was as spicy as was ever fought in Boston; as peppery as ever staged in any boxing centre. It was jammed full of action the thirty-six minutes it lasted; in fact, was one of the busiest battles ever fought in the entertaining lightweight class.

Saylor, who is ruling the longshot in the betting for tomorrow evening's performance, was the big noise in the other scrap. Weathering the always rapid White start, Saylor commenced setting the pace beginning with the third round and from then right on to the windup he was the one best bet.

White is a lightweight of the fighting stripe. He has but little speed and never wastes much time in boxing. Charley knows nothing else but to give and receive and nine times out of ten he gives a heap lot more than he takes. That's the sort of a machine Saylor shapes up good against.

Ted Lewis made the Hoosier look like a novice in their scrap a fortnight ago. The London freak was too clever, too speedy and too cunning for Saylor. He never permitted Millburn to get properly set.

JUST SAYLOR'S STYLE.

Then, as Ted didn't show up when it came to make weight, he was an out-and-out welterweight at ringside and far too strong for the Indianapolis youth.

Lewis even made Saylor look bad in the clinches and that's where Millburn always shines. The big difference in the weight gave the larruping Londoner far too big an edge in allow Saylor to handle him when in close in the manner Saylor generally handles his foe, even his big foe is a bona fide lightweight.

Charley White forms exactly the sort of an antagonist Saylor loves to battle with; looms up as precisely the foe Saylor looks his best against. The other Saylor-White battle was one lively, lambasting affair, and unless the unexpected happens with a vehement vengeance, they will repeat in fine fashion tomorrow night.

Saylor and White have signed to make 135 pounds at 4 o'clock. It's an easy figure for both battlers, so it is presumed they will take the trouble to show up at the club at the appointed hour and hop on the scales.

Messrs. Lewis and Murray have arranged one of the banner programs of preliminary events of the season. Harry Carlson, that very good-looking Brockton featherweight, hooks up with "Brooklyn Jimmy" Flynn, who is reported to be a rough and rugged little miller, in the semi-windup number. They will trot eight rounds providing no kayo is slipped over.

The two six-rounders will be furnished by Henry Hall and Joe Brown and Harvey Sayder and Sammy Stern. The last named young gentleman looked very good the last time he showed at the Atlas A. A.

NATE SHOULD BEHAVE.

Nate Lewis, Charley White's manager, has always insisted upon having a New York referee being the honors at his past Atlas A. A. bookings.

It was good wisdom on the suave Nate's part, for if anybody else in the sporting world, save one B. Roche of Big Bear, had been the third man in the ring when White and Saylor lined up the last time, the verdict would have been handed to the Ray Bronson entrant, when was only most proper, as Saylor won by the widest of margins.

Thus far it has not been learned whether or not Lewis will again insist upon a New York referee being imported to handle the affair. If he does, and gets away with it, the Atlas A. A. crowd should be ashamed of itself. Phil Powers, its official referee, has more than made good since getting the position and he's the proper party to be on the job in all Brooklyn numbers at the Arena.

Same as always the pudgy Colonel Maffitt Flaherty will handle the preliminary events. His popularity with the "fans" is picking up, it is a pleasure to chronicle, as said "fans" were riding him mighty hard for a while.

A. L. TO LOWER ITS EXPENSES IN 1916

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—When the American League magnates meet next month they will make two moves toward retrenchment that were made by the National League last Spring.

A player limit will be established and the Spring training season will be cut short, according to men close to American League officials.

Already the managers of the clubs in the Johnsonian organization are making their arrangements so that they will not be interfered with by the expected ruling.

The Yankees will not begin training until March 1, although a few pitchers will slip down to Macon, Ga., unofficially the last week in February.

COMMIE QUITS COAST.

The White Sox, who usually started on their training trip to California in February, will train in Mineral Wells, Texas, and will not leave Chicago until March 1. The Detroit Tigers also are arranging to go South later than usual, and the other clubs will follow suit.

The Giants protested vigorously last season about the limit, for they had a number of veterans, held by long term contracts, who were of little use, but who filled up the club roster.

Other clubs, however, found the limit rule to be a success, and the system by which the training season was shortened cut off a good sized slice of the general running expenses.

IT'S A QUESTION.

It always had been a question as to whether long training seasons were worth while.

They were expensive, and often clubs got to their camps so early that warm weather had not yet arrived. The Giants, in Marlin last year, came in between good spells of weather, however. The sun was warm until they arrived, but disappeared, never to return until they got out of town.

THE RABBITS' COLUMN

By Walter J. Mcgarvile
SHORTSTOP OF THE BRAVES

THE report that the St. Louis Cardinals are for sale naturally has an important bearing on any discussion or their probable course in the Toner circuit next year. Two of the difficulties about playing baseball in St. Louis are the weather and the "fans." Both make it hot for the players.

MILLER HUGGINS, the St. Louis manager, is a peppery little player who is counted on to do quite a little weeding out for next year if he stays on the job. St. Louis gossip has it that Hub Perdue, one time outfielder for the Braves, "Cozy" Dolan, "Hunk" Hyatt and Dan Griner are among those who will walk the plank. Perdue is now said to be shouting against the story he is to be traded to the coast.

* * *

PERDUE, the Gallatin Squash... never has set the league on fire. Dolan, who is famous for his shifts of scenes, is declared to be headed for St. Paul. This is the club from which Huggins secured "Sea Lion" Charley Hall, the old Red Sox pitcher, toward the end of the past season. Hall had won sixteen straight games when St. Louis grabbed him.

* * *

IT was Marty O'Toole of Framingham, now working for Columbus, who broke Hall's winning streak. The "Sea Lion," so-called from the deep voice he employed in coaching—even more of a bark than owned by "Chief" Thomas of the Red Sox—had allowed but sixteen runs in the twenty-six games.

* * *

THE Cards have picked up a promising shortstop in Rogers Hornsby, a native of Denison, Texas. Higgins rejected him into the city series with the Browns and he showed to advantage.

Peter de Lacy, Well Known Turf Follower, Dead

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—Peter de Lacy, seventy-one, one of the most widely known sportsmen and turf followers in the country, is dead here following an operation.

Coming from Ireland, his birthplace, as a young man, de Lacy soon grew in the public eye. In 1890 he was reported to have made $100,000 by the operation of poolrooms and race tracks. In that same year he caused a sensation by starting a fight to put the racetracks out of business and stop all pool selling in the Metropolitan district. This fight he waged for ten years. After that he was seldom heard of.

De Lacy figured in many suits and at one time filed charges against William Travers Jerome, then District Attorney. In the early part of his life he was interested in politics and was closely associated with Richard Croker, John Scannell and other Tammany leaders.

De Lacy is survived by two daughters and two grandchildren. It is said that his estate amounts to more than $1,000,000.

Lillard Plans Ducking Out as Andover Coach

ANDOVER, Nov. 15.—W. H. Lillard has fully determined to resign as Andover's coach after being on the job for eight years. When active on the gridiron himself, Lillard was a Dartmouth end of repute, and played on the 1902 Green eleven, the one which dedicated the Harvard stadium.

Lillard started at Andover in 1907, served the following year; spent 1909 coaching in Dartmouth varsity and was back at Andover the following Fall, where he has remained ever since.

Five of Lillard's eight Andover teams have vanquished Exeter, though what things seem the fact that Exeter has walked off with the last three battles and led up heavy scores each time.

Lillard remains as popular as ever with the faculty, as well as the students, but he stated in advance of Saturday's battle that this would be his last year at the helm and his friends declare he intends standing by his declaration.

YALE'S TRIUMPH PRESENT FROM TIGERS

NEW HAVEN, Ct., Nov. 15.—Yale's sudden transformation into a real football team and Princeton's unexpected collapse at a time when victory seemed certain lends further complications to a season which has already shown numerous surprises.

Princeton had sufficient warning as to what might be expected of Yale, for the Blue has before thrown away its crutches at the last moment to torment the Tigers in their annual game. The coaches tried hard to impress upon the Princeton team the dangers of over-confidence, and yet they were taken by surprise in spite of the warnings of wiser heads.

To Princeton's followers the Tigers' downfall last Saturday is most unfortunate, because Head Coach "Speedy" Rush had developed a team which was above the average.

While Princeton knew a lot of football, it showed on Saturday that it did not know the fundamental principles of the gridiron game—ability to hold the ball.

Princeton literally fumbled away the game at New Haven. The alertness which the Tigers displayed earlier in the season to follow the ball seemed to have been entirely forgotten. They fumbled like a novice team and fumbled at critical times. A football team which has had weeks and weeks of diligent coaching is not a good football team if it fumbles in the game which is supposed to indicate the highest standard of its development.

The triumph of the Elis in the Bowl naturally increases the interest in the Harvard-Yale battle and gives next Saturday's contest in Cambridge new significance.

As far as the dope goes the Blue showed nothing against the Orange and Black which should entitle it to be considered on even terms with the Crimson. Harvard in late years has been anything but awed by Yale.

There is small chance that the New Haven warriors will have much chance to profit by Harvard's mistakes. Haughton's elevens don't make many mistakes. Yale will be obliged to construct its own opportunities. That is regarded as a moral certainty.

There is another point to be considered. Harvard is apt to be better against the Blue than it was against Princeton. Will Yale be as it was on Saturday?

Of course, Shevlin, Hinkey, Owsley and the other Yale coaching staff will have a few days more to work on the team, but can any big change take place in the games within seven days and be as good in the second as it was in the first? Princeton was much better against Harvard than it was against Yale.

Will Yale be as good against Harvard as it was against Princeton?

It will take more than a superficial knowledge of fundamentals to trim the Cambridge men. Yale must not only strengthen the weak points in its defence, but must provide an attack outside of the one confined to Guernsey's toe. The centre of the Eli line may show a vast improvement, but we shall be much surprised if Yale gets away with many tackle plays, either inside or outside of Guernsey. Moreover, unless the Yale ends improve, the Blue is going to have one belaviting stopping the versatile Mr. Mahan.

HARVARD TO SNAP OWN MOVIE PICTURES

Harvard is going into the "movie" business. With the prospects of one of the smartest football houses in years at the Stadium when Harvard and Yale clash on next Saturday, representatives of camera companies from all parts of the country have stormed the offices of the Harvard A. A. seeking permission to film the day's doings, but one and all have been turned down.

Each company has been informed that the privilege will not be granted to any outsider, but that Harvard is going to snap the game itself for country-wide exploitation.

The Harvard solons have engaged a pair of operators, who will be stationed on special stands in the Stadium from the start of play with the crowd, the game, and all side features. The films will be expressed around to Harvard direct throughout the country at so much per reel and let out to theatres for showing.

In this way the Harvard backers of the scheme expect to clear a handsome profit as their investment.

OLD ELI UPSETS FIGURES HARVARD SECONDS STAR

By HERMAN NICKERSON.

There is to be a football game out in the Harvard Stadium next Saturday afternoon. It will be a game of football in every sense of the word; a contest in which there should be enough thrills to please the most rabid of partisans of these two great universities.

When Harvard and Yale line up for the word it will be about an even thing, which calls to mind what wonders may be performed in a very short space of time. This change has occurred within two short weeks. So strange is football.

Look back and you find Harvard a rather crude, unschooled team, where lack of team work and failure to accent the ball made Crimson followers wonder how it could ever be possible for such an aggregation to be put in shape for a meeting with the Tiger and the Bulldog.

Look back at Yale at that time and you can almost hear the cries for Hill. Poor old Yale; going to get an awful trimming from Princeton, surely, and Harvard—why, of course, nothing to it. Players of great merit on the gridiron they were, but unfamiliar with strict interpretation of the eligibility rule, from taking part in the games, and a football machine turned out over the sporting wire. Too bad Yale couldn't have her full strength for the good of the sport.

PREDICTION GIVEN JAR.

What happened? Enough to be wilder anyone. Predictions have gone by the board. The best information has proven of no avail. Men sure of themselves upon all previous occasions have slipped and fallen from their pedestals. Uneven work, fumbling and general paralysis of the football brain seems to picture what has happened to the teams playing Harvard and Yale. All of which is in the sport, and has to be accepted as such, and no one seeks an explanation as to Yale or Harvard of what has been accomplished, rather the effort is to point to what will occur when they come together Saturday.

Princeton and Cornell, great teams on paper, with class and fight. The Tigers' mouths just watered for the time to come when they could bury their teeth in Harvard and Eli. All know what happened in these matches. The Tiger was there with everything in the world, but the ability to hold the ball, and it cost them their reputation.

Then figure the method adopted at Harvard of dispensing information concerning the work of the team. It is easier to get into the sanctum sanctorum than to witness secret work, and should one be permitted, the European censors have nothing on "us over here."

OUTLOOK WAS BAD.

The Crimson team was reported to be unschooled, or else how should the fact be given out that only tackling of the dummy and chalk talk, running through signals were indulged in? No scrimmage work. It looked bad.

Out of this condition emerged a team big enough and strong enough to whip Princeton, having as a second string player who was capable of giving the Brown Bear, victors over Yale, a trimming, enjoying on the whole a little of the same kind of luck Yale had in Princeton.

Down at Yale New Haven the cry for help was heard and answered. Coach Shevlin rushed to the scene of action and took a bunch of disheartened in hand, getting some of his old time run and "pep" into their hearts as well as into play.

What Shevlin has accomplished is little short of what Stallings did for the Braves. Certainly Yale was the "Forlorn Hope" of football before Shevlin took hold. This Yale coach may not be able to pull his team through for the championship, but up to date he has produced enough to stamp him as among the wonder men of the gridiron game.

The methods were reversed. Harvard in the past has called in many football doctors, but just now more so than for many seasons past, it does not appear necessary to other than listen to Coach Percy Haughton.

OLD "BEAR" TALK.

Yale used to tell of the many men on the hospital list, with anything from the measles to a broken leg. Suddenly it would be discovered that the doctor was in error, there were no such animals, the patients revived and fore off runs varying in length from the distance of the field to these short, snappy ramming line plunges for touchdowns.

While Yale has had its share of injuries, it has not concealed anything except the fact that it could come back with something like the old Yale spirit. Now instead of figuring the Elis with a tinge of sympathy, the Bulldog is being regarded as a formidable foe.

Perhaps it was just as well the Team B boys at Cambridge kept on the side lines. They may be needed to stem the tide of luck and pluck which appears to be rolling from the direction of New Haven.

The beating Brown gave Yale didn't matter in the least. It placed the betting odds at an abortive figure. The Elis set themselves for the Princeton game with determination to win, or at least hold the score down to within a reasonable margin prior to the big game of the year.

YALE LUCK PROVERBIAL.

Luck has been a tradition at Yale, and reading the accounts of the game, it looks as if it was still with Shevlin's men. The Tigers' attack was just as it had been against Yale, fast and furious, only the men couldn't hold onto the ball at critical moments in the struggle.

When Harvard and Yale meet, there is to be a duel in punting and drop kicking. Mahan and Guernsey will undoubtedly give as fine an exhibition as any seen in the Stadium, which will be going at top speed. "Pie" Way is another man whose work will be watched closely, and an effort made to block him.

It would appear from the game the Team B put up against Brown, that the Harvard Varsity had something on Yale. Mahan and Harte are very clever in the forward pass department, Harte, being reasonable sure on his end, and rather fast and vigorous in his ground gaining ability. With the direction of any one of the quarterbacks the Crimson team appears well equipped this fall.

EXWRIGHT IS READY.

The backfield of the Harvard team can use Enright now, for he clearly proved able to stand the strain of a Yale game. While Boles is a hard-working, clever man, it would not surprise the fans if someone else figured back of the line. Rollins is another boy who may get into the game. He is a rugged player of more than ordinary ability.

Harvard's ends are fast, and get down with the ball, while the tackling by the Crimson team has become pretty close to perfect. The line is stronger than Yale's and has been able to hold where the Blue has smashed. On attack the Team B boys showed to marked advantage in the first period, when the Yale Varsity against the same team had failed dismally.

There is one thing, however, that always figures in a Harvard-Yale contest, whether football or baseball. The minute the Elis start to unfurl their banners they stiffen and fight to the last with a spirit heretofore uncovered.

So the game to be played Saturday, looks to be a duel of vigorous and clever a contest as any among the many played in the Stadium. Both teams have surprised their followers. Now the question is—which is the better team?

This will be settled to a reasonable degree before sundown November 29.

Hopkins New Star of Tufts Machine

Coach Whelan of the Tufts College eleven stated today that the squad came out of the Bowdoin game in good condition. He plans giving his players but three days' work this week in preparation for the Thanksgiving Day combat with Springfield, which brings the season to a close.

Tufts looked better and put up a far superior fight against Bowdoin than it did when battling with Trinity. Hopkins more than delivered at end, filling the position as well that Sanborn was not missed. Guard Algoe also showed all his old-time form.

MAHONEY OUT TO GALLOP OVER NORWICH

Boston College, which had a narrow escape from defeat in its game with Connecticut State at Storrs on Saturday, only winning by the score of 7 to 6, went into the game with practically a second team, as Coach Steve Mahoney, figuring on an easy victory, decided to try out a number of his second string men in preparation for the big game with Norwich Thanksgiving Day afternoon.

The Connecticut team put up such an unexpectedly strong argument that after the first period Mahoney was forced to use all the varsity men he had with him on the trip.

Captain Jim Duffy played one of the best games of his life and it was mainly due to his playing that the Maroon and Gold was able to get away with the victory. Torry also played a great game at fullback, while Dee and Hogan, who alternated at quarterback, both won the team with good judgment.

Lowney's absence was felt and his long runs through tackle and around the end were missed. Curry and McKenzie, who were given a round of Lowney's backfield position, did great work.

As Boston College has no game until the Norwich game, Mahoney intends giving his men a good rest the first part of the week. He will probably not put on a scrimmage practice until Thursday or Friday.

Mahoney is confident that Lowney and his other cripples will be in the proper physical trim for the Norwich battle and that Boston College will clear its season in a blaze of glory.

Crimson Squad Will Rest Up at Fair Tyngsboro

Harvard's final football mass meeting this Fall is scheduled for Wednesday evening in the Union. Head Coach Haughton will be on hand to counsel against over confidence in the Yale battle and can be relied upon delivering one of his straight-from-the-shoulder openers. Captain Eddie Mahan, too, will have a few words to say to the undergraduates.

The football squad will sit on the platform as honored guests and the meeting will wind up, same as always, with cheers for the players and Coach Haughton and a round or two of college songs under the directorship of "Bill" Bingham, the rack captain.

Thursday afternoon at 3.30 o'clock the four undergraduate classes, headed by Kenrick's band, will march to the Stadium where they will witness the final practice of the year and again have their inning of cheers and songs.

Early in the evening the football squad will be whisked away to the county probably to Tyngsboro, where the Vesper Country Club is located, and will remain there until a few hours before the curtain is rung up for the battles with Yale in the Stadium.

B. C. High After Game to Settle the State Title

As a result of its handsomely gained 13 to 6 victory over Rindge on Saturday, Boston College High has issued a challenge to both Everett High and Waltham High for a post-season game to determine the State school championship. B. C. High, known to the best the school has ever had and which includes the bulwark of scholastic circles in Massachusetts.

With only one defeat to mar its record this Fall and that by a margin of but a touchdown, B. C. High was badly crippled on Saturday, but the game has a pretty good claim on the State championship and would unquestionably make either Waltham or Everett hustle their hardest for victory.

B. C. High was originally scheduled to play Dr. Paul Dashiell of Chicago a post-season game in Chicago, November 27, but the game was disapproved by the faculty on the ground that it would involve too great an absence from class. Then Weymouth High cancelled its date for next Friday and B. C. High is without a game for this week.

Little Chance of a Brown-Green Game

PROVIDENCE, Nov. 15.—After all, it is feared that Brown and Dartmouth will be unable to resume their gridiron relationship next Fall. Where it had been hoped a game would be booked it is now feared one is out of the question owing to the utter impossibility of the two universities to agree on a date.

THIRD BIG YEAR FOR JONES AND EXETER

EXETER, N. H., Nov. 15.—The members of the Phillips-Exeter football team emerged from Saturday's victory over Andover in splendid physical condition. The few injuries received were all of a minor nature.

The game, which was bitterly contested by both academies, despite its apparent one-sidedness, was remarkably free from that rough playing which almost invariably creeps into an important encasement between rival school teams.

Though the wearers of the rival colors entered the game for blood, and fought it out tooth and nail, not a player was disqualified for unnecessary roughness, nor a penalty of any kind imposed for any such offence.

HAD BIG SEASON.

The victory rounded out a most successful season for the Exonians, who have now gone three whole years without once tasting defeat. It was their third straight victory over the Hopkins Andovarians and their thirteenth win in the historic series which began back in 1877.

With Saturday's game the contract held at the academy by Coach "Ted" Jones, the former Yale star, ended.

Jones came to the school three years ago, at a time when Exeter's football stock was at its lowest ebb. The academy was losing games with a monotonous regularity and what was even worse, it had not defeated Andover since 1904.

SPLIT JOBS A BEAR.

Jones proved the "miracle man" in the case, however, by moulding a winning team out of the available material during his first Fall at the school.

Since then Exeter has won with a regularity that reflects great credit on Jones and his regime. In none of its record this Fall-and it is doubtful would be greatly regretted by the student body—has the work of the members of the team. There is a possibility, however, that Jones may resign his task as head coach, and in this fact Exonians are reposing their present hopes.

Green Goes to Work for Syracuse Game

HANOVER, N. H., Nov. 15.—Head Coach Cavanaugh of the Big Green, fairly well satisfied with the form the varsity displayed in the Bates game, Saturday, plans a big week's work so as to turn the finished machine in the pink of trim for next Saturday's important encounter with Syracuse. While the green made a lot of mistakes against Bates, its form, on the whole, was good.

Syracuse piled up a big score on Colgate last Saturday, showing that it has reached the top of its form. Dartmouth's student body is hopeful that the team will do well by the Syracuse "Fans" need not expect any odds from Green supporters.

End Wiedeman of Yale Is Out of Harvard Battle

NEW HAVEN, Ct., Nov. 15.—Carl Wiedeman, son of the millionaire Cincinnati brewer, was the only Yale warrior badly hurt in Saturday's battle with Princeton. He gave his ankle a severe twist while rushing down the gridiron under one of King Otis Guernsey's long punts.

Today Coach Shevlin admitted that he feared that Wiedeman would not be able to get into the Harvard game next Saturday.

Jim Higginbotham, formerly of the University of Texas, will substitute for Wiedeman, should the Ohio boy be kept out, and the odds are against his playing.

Waltham-Everett Will Arrange Plans

Waltham High and Everett High will meet on the gridiron in their big post-season game Saturday, November 27, at Fenway Park, it will be the scene of the encounter. Beverly High has booked De Paul Academy of Chicago for a game December 6. The game will be played in Beverly.

TURNER PICKED TO SUCCEED A. J. LILL

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—A lively session was predicted today when the annual convention of the A. A. U. of the United States was held at the Waldorf-Astoria.

Chief interest in the meeting centered upon the election of a new president and the appeal by Abel Kiviat and Harry J. Smith, recently declared professionals. Their appeal will be acted upon by the Board of Governors.

George J. Turner of Baltimore is a leading candidate for the presidency, to succeed Alfred J. Lill of Boston. Howard Simons of Los Angeles, formerly of Buffalo, and George Patterson of the Middle Atlantic Association, are also mentioned as likely successful candidates.

The registration committee announced it had taken action on the following cases:

Charles H. Houghton, University of Pennsylvania, reinstated; Fred Heller, Knights of St. Anthony, application rejected; Arthur Hall, Boston, Mass., appeal denied; John Bohlmann, Marlboro, Mass., appeal denied; Harley H. AND now, I supposed, I must be getting PETER ready, so as to go to you children with NEXT Sunday's AMERICAN.

How weary more, and I shall have only Baby Bob left with me. I never saw such a baby. Snow White and Rose Red have been so good to him that he seldom asks about his Mamma any more. Perhaps, when HIS time comes, he will not want to leave the Land of Make Believe at all. THEN what shall I do?

Oh, I know all about how Martha arrived at YOUR house. SHE called me on the telephone this morning—the wireless telephone, of course—and told me how good you have been to her, and what a splendid time she and Mamma Sunshine are having. I am sure I thank you very MUCH for your GREAT kindness to my dear wife and little daughter.

Mother Goose, who flew up to Boston yesterday morning with Little Martha, on her team of wonderful ganders, arrived home safely just before 5 o'clock. She brought Boston baked beans, and some delicious brown bread, and we had a delightful feast. I don't know when I have tasted such beans.

"They call them BOSTON-baked," said Mother Goose, "but I got them in a neat little shop in Massachusetts avenue, Cambridge. How do you make THAT out?"

I didn't.

"What were you doing in Cambridge?" I asked the good dame.

"Cambridge," she said. "Why, man dear, I called at several places in Cambridge, Charlestown, South Boston, Brookline, Roxbury, Roxbindale, West Roxbury, and I don't know how many other sections. O, yes, I distinctly recall a house in Hamilton street, in the Meeting House Hill district.

"The fact of the matter is, I have lately undertaken to do some shaving for Santa Claus, who has a big storehouse just across the field from MY place. Santa, good soul, is considerably worried over the Great War in Europe. Several of his largest toy factories are situated in Germany, and it is going to be difficult to get German toys into America for Christmas.

"The result is that Santa wants to be PARTICULARLY careful this Christmas, to restrict his gifts to only the BEST little boys and the best little GIRLS.

"Well, he has been receiving reports, as usual.

"There isn't a house in New England, Mr. Sunshine, where Santa hasn't got somebody who lets him KNOW things. Sometimes, it's the DOG. More often it's the CAT. Quite frequently it's the CANARY BIRD. I know of chicken stocks which are on Santa's payroll, and tell him EVERYTHING.

"So, when Mamma says, 'Was there EVER such a careless girl as Rosalie, or Mary, or Sara, or Muriel' (or whatever the name of the careless little girl), you may be sure Santa hears of this complaint before night. And the same when Papa says, 'I don't know what's getting into that boy, lately!' Santa Claus hears about that, too.

"Santa Claus asked me as a PARTICULAR favor to look into some of these complaints. 'Mother Goose,' he said, 'YOU know boys and girls quite as well as ANYBODY does. I get these reports, and I'm not quite sure about them. TAKE this list of names, if you will, investigate the cases, and tell me what you THINK.'

"Well, I investigated. I even had some reports to look into at Pittsburg and Lowell, and Haverhill, and Nashua.

"And I want to say that I didn't find so much as ONE BAD BOY, or ONE BAD GIRL, in New England!

"Now, please understand me, Mr. Sunshine, I DON'T mean that ALL the boys and ALL the girls are perfect, nor by any means. SOME of them ARE careless. Some forget their morning or their evening prayers; some scuffle their feet; some are forever forgetting where they put things, and in the morning asking, 'Mamma, WHERE'S my hat?' 'Mamma, WHAT did you do with my stockings?'

"But these are scarcely GRIEVOUS faults, and certainly not sufficient cause for taking names off Santa Claus' list. I am going to tell Santa so, and although his stock is not QUITE so large as it was last year, I am still convinced that there will be enough to go around."

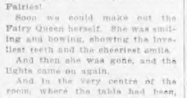
"I wish," Master Peter said, "you could get Santa Claus to let me have an automobile to go to Boston on, next Saturday. You see, dear Mother Goose, I am to go out with the SUNDAY AMERICAN, next Sunday morning, to join Mamma and Martha. YOU don't know where THEY are. Don't you suppose Santa would let me have my automobile a month or so in advance of Christmas?"

"STRICTLY against the rule," Mother Goose told him, "because, don't you see, if Santa made an exception for YOU, he would have to do the same for thousands of others. You have no idea how many absolutely perfect little boys there are in Boston and in other cities and towns. Why, I know one whose Mamma is reading the AMERICAN to him at this moment and HE is such a good little boy that, if every day were Christmas, Hill house would be so full of toys and things that Mamma couldn't move around. She is kissing him AT THIS VERY MOMENT!

"However, Peter, if you want an AUTOMOBILE, for your trip to Boston, why cannot I get it for you? I've got a WISHING CAP, and I'll put it on, right here."

Suiting the action to the word, the dame removed her cone-shaped hat, took a Wishing Cap from under her cloak, and placed the Cap upon her head.

"I wish," she said, slowly and distinctly, "that I had a handsome automobile, 1918 model, for this VERY good boy."



In an instant all the lights in the House Under the Hill were out.

Another instant and we saw, in one corner of the darkened dining room, a bright light about the size of a dime. It grew constantly in size. It was the great diamond on the sceptre of the Queen of the Fairies!

Soon we could make out the Fairy Queen herself. She was smiling and bowing, showing the loveliest teeth and the cheeriest smile.

And then she was gone, and the lights came on again.

And in the very centre of the room, where the table had been, was one of the finest automobiles I have ever seen.

"This, Peter," said Mother Goose, "is YOUR machine, to do with as you will. And now, my dears, I shall leave you. Master Peter must be in the hands of Santa Claus before I go to bed."

"And George Washington," she said to me, "if you are writing anything for the AMERICAN, I hope you will not tell the boys and girls HOW good they are. It spoils them."

I don't believe that. I believe, if a boy is a good boy, you ought to TELL him so. It will make him a BETTER boy. That's my way.

I have simply GOT to have one of those Wishing Caps!

A Practical Echo

A tourist, passing through a picturesque glen in Scotland, was told by his guide that at the spot where they now stood a splendid echo could be obtained. "Just shout Two bottles of whiskey, and see!" said the guide. The visitor shouted, and, after waiting for several minutes, turned to the Scot. "I do not hear any echo!" he said. "Maybe no," chuckled the Scot, "but here's the laddie comin' wi' the whiskey!"

Analyze Your Disposition, Says Ella Wheeler Wilcox

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox.

Copyright, 1915, Star Company.

AS YOU go along through life, if you find a great majority of people you encounter difficult to live with in social relations it might be well for you to analyze your own disposition.

You will not like such an intimation, yet I am sure it will be worth while to entertain it. Look back five years, to begin with. How were things with you five years ago?

Were you having discordant experiences in business or at home? Did you feel out of sorts with several of your friends and wish you could be in a more congenial atmosphere?

Then come down another year—how was it four years ago? No doubt you will be able to bring at once to mind the most trying and annoying people who marred your comfort at that period.

Disagreeable personalities have a way of leaving a mental photograph on sensitive mind plates. Three and two years ago, being still at those ranes, you will easily place the individuals in focus who interfered with your enjoyment of life.

LOOK AT HOME

Now if you are still finding difficulty in adjusting yourself to your environment, make up your mind that some one besides all this various company you have known in five years is at fault.

Look into your own disposition.

Are you not aggressive regarding the manners and methods and ways of others? And are you not always sure that you are right and that others are wrong?

Even if you do not tell them so, if you are thinking it, your thoughts are at work laying the underground wires of discord.

How many people have you fallen out with in five years?

How many have disillusioned you?

It tugs at your heartstrings when you think how many—and you say to yourself that it is terrible to have friends and acquaintances prove so unworthy and unsatisfactory.

But remember, these same people may all be thinking that it is you who have proved unsatisfactory and unworthy.

Of course you resent such an idea. So would they resent your thoughts of them, possibly, even probably. That there have been unworthy, unkind and untrust-worthy individuals among all who have displeased or pained you is more than likely. And again it is more than likely that if you are always being disappointed in humanity the trouble lies somewhere in yourself.

You are over-critical, over-sensitive, over-exacting in your habit of thought. Make a mental right-about face. Refuse to think five consecutive minutes on the misdoings or faults of your associates.

Watch for things to like and praise.

Tell the people you are thrown with something admirable about themselves. Then do not spoil it by an immediate criticism, if you find some one in the office, or the house annoying you, make a pleasant remark, and if you can get out into the fresh air, take a few inhalations and think you are drawing in serenity and love and peace.

Then go back and make yourself agreeable. Watch yourself that you do not wear an air of superiority over your associates. If you feel that you know more than they do, keep it to yourself, and let them find it out.

SHOW SORROW.

If they do not detect it, be sure you are not so superior as you think. The superiority which has to announce itself is very inferior.

If you are thrown with one of these unfortunate souls so far behind in the march of evolution that it indulges in malicious lies, in mischief making or with dissolute habits, be more sorry than angry.

Talk to the offender as you would to a child throwing knives about for amusement, and endeavor to make him or her realize the danger, while you keep an well out of reach as permissible until your subject has awakened to a better understanding.

Do the same with any really vicious qualities you encounter in your close associates. The little faults and blemishes ignore as much as you can, and remember others are obliged to condone many of your shortcomings.

Cultivate charity, sweetness of disposition, appreciation of others, amiability, patience and good nature.

And in the interesting effort to acquire these qualities you will forget to notice the many faults in others which have heretofore rendered you so dissatisfied with the many.

THE STORY OF GRUMBLE TONE

THERE was a boy named Grumble Tone, who ran away to sea.

"I'm sick of things on land," he said, "as sick as I can be,
A life upon the bounding wave is just the life for me!"
But the seething ocean billow called to stimulate his mirth,
For he did not like the vessel or the dizzy, rolling berth,
And he thought the sea was almost as unpleasant as the earth.

He wandered into foreign lands; he saw each wondrous sight,
But nothing that he heard or saw seemed just exactly right,
And so he journeyed on and on, still seeking for delight.
He talked with kings and ladies grand; he dined in courts, they say,
But always found the people dull and longed to get away
To search for that mysterious land where he should want to stay.

He wandered over all the world, his hair grew white as snow;
He reached that final bourne at last where all of us must go,
But never found the land he sought; the reason would you know?
The reason was that north or south, wherever his steps were bent,
On land or sea, in court or hall, he found but discontent,
For he took his disposition with him, everywhere he went.

A "Pat" Reply

An Englishman, an Irishman and a Scotsman went forth together to burgle a farmhouse. The Sassenach appropriated a horse, the Gael a cow, while the representative from Erin commandeered a cart.

As they were making their way into a town a policeman approached and asked the Englishman where he got the horse.

"Ah!" was the reply, "I've had it since it was a foal!"

"And where did you get that cow?" he asked Scottie, who responded:

"Ah, I've had her since she was a calf!"

Turning to Pat, the constable next asked: "Where did you get the car?"

"Ah, begorra," quickly retorted Pat, "I've had it since it was a wheelbarrow!"

What Happened to Jane

The Whole Town Is Astonished at the News of Jane's Engagement to Augustus

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water

Copyright, 1915, Star Co. Syndicate.

CHAPTER XXIV.

ALL Milton gasped at the news of Jane Hardy's engagement. She was a wise girl, the elderly people said. It was known that Augustus Reeves had a lot of money laid safely away in the bank. Since Ezra Hardy was poor and had so little push and ambition, it was well for his daughter to feather her nest.

The young people of the village were of varying minds about the affair. Those who were happy enough to be romantic still, voiced their surprise and disappointment. They had supposed that Jane would some time marry that nice Sanderson chap. Of course, there had been nothing between them yet, but still one never knew what might happen. And even if he was not rich like Mr. Reeves, he was young and good looking and had such lovely manners.

Thus the sentimentalists. Jane's other acquaintances—those who had an eye for the main chance—were of the opinion that while it was a pity that Jane's betrothed was so many years her senior, yet it was better to be an old man's darling than a young man's slave. Certainly the Reeves house was big and well furnished, even if it was old-fashioned and gloomy in appearance.

But of course when Jane was once established there she would change things. Mary Baird had been Mr. Reeves' housekeeper for so long that he had gotten used to her ways. But Jane had too much spunk to put up with such an arrangement now. Even if she allowed Mrs. Baird to stay, she would have the house run in her own way.

Mary Baird herself heard the news and laughed at it disdainfully. Had she not been Augustus Reeves' working housekeeper since before his wife's death, ten years ago? Would not she, of all people in the world, know if he was going to get married again?

MARY BAIRD FEELS SURE OF HER PLACE

Some such question as this she hurled at a gossiping neighbor who "stopped in" one morning to talk over the latest rumor.

"People must have something to talk about, I suppose!" Mary scoffed, her black eyes snapping. "I'm not denying that Mr. Reeves goes to see the Hardys, but he's been doing that for years, off and on. And he did pick up Jane and take her driving one day when he happened to be passing her house. I know all about that. She must have told him she'd never seen the inside of this house since she was little, and he went in and bought her by here and let her get out and see how nice the place looked. Just as he might have brought a child by. And that's all there is to it."

"Isn't that how I told all there is to it," the neighbor insisted. "I tell you Mr. Reeves has been goin' there more regular than ever lately, and Mrs. Morse—she lives near 'em, you know—met him Ezry only this mornin' and asked him if it was true that Jane was to be a weddin' in his family before another year was over, and he grunted out, 'I guess that there will be.'"

"I'm not saying that there's not going to be a wedding in his family by a year," Mary Baird retorted, "but I do say it won't be to Mr. Reeves."

"I guess the wish is part-way father to the thought with you," the caller teased. "You don't relish the idee of havin' somebody over you in this house. You've had a comfortable home of it here for a long time, Mrs. Baird."

She shrugged her shoulders. "Comfortable enough," she admitted, "but there's lots of work in such a big house. And I guess that Mr. Reeves has got mighty dependent on my housekeeping, too."

"I suppose so," the neighbor agreed. Then, with another laugh, "Well, if he is going to get married you'll have less trouble and responsibility with the housekeepin', I suppose. The new wife would take the reins herself, of course."

A NEW FEAR STEALS INTO HER HEART.

Mary tried to smile, tried to toss her head scornfully. But at heart she was frightened. When she was alone again and busy with her baking, her musings went fearfully back to Reeves' behavior of late. He had been more taciturn than usual and cresser than she had ever known him to be. Only before yesterday Ezra Hardy had come to see him, and later the two men had left the house together. Why was Hardy here so often nowadays? Had Augustus been at Jane's home last evening? That was the second night in succession that he had not been at home to supper.

When he came in, she called to him from her room and asked him if he didn't want something to eat. He said, "No!" That was all. No other word, no explanation. Now she felt as if she must know the truth.

A mirror hung in the kitchen. She snatched it from its hook and carried it over to the window, where the strong light fell full on her face. She gazed steadily at the features reflected in the glass.

Her coarse black hair was still thick, but graying fast. She wore it strained back, thus accentuating the hollows in her temples and the prominence of the high cheek bones inherited from her Indian grandmother. From the same source had come those coal-black eyes, hard and glittering now as her thoughts ran wild. The aquiline nose and yellow skin were certainly not beautiful.

Yet she had been considered a pretty woman when she first came here to live. She had been a widow, her husband having died soon after her marriage. She had come at first to "help with the housekeeping" during the illness of Augustus Reeves's rich wife, but the invalid had lived only a few months after Mrs. Baird's arrival.

"He used to tell me how handsome I was," she muttered now, "and I was fool enough to give up everything for him, to sacrifice for him, to slave for him, just because he wanted me, and now——"

She heard a step in the door and, before she could turn, Reeves was in the room. Her face grew a shade more sallow as she met his eyes. She took a quick step toward him.

"Is it true, this thing I hear?" she demanded, her voice shaking.

"What are you talking about, Mary?" Reeves asked evasively.

She tried to laugh, but failed. "Of course, it's only gossip," she said, weakly, "but—I don't suppose you know that folks are saying you're going to be married again. Of course, I know it isn't true."

"And how," Augustus Reeves asked slowly and coldly, his gaze fixed on the black eyes raised to his; "and how do you know it isn't true?"

RICH LACK CIVIC PRIDE, SAYS FITZGERALD

Former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald told 250 delegates to the City Planning conference, at the noon session today, that Boston could be another Paris in beauty if the proper steps were taken.

He vigorously attacked a certain class of wealthy individuals, and the standpat cities and towns of Metropolitan Boston—especially Newton—whom he blamed for the defeat of plans for cooperative and co-ordinated city improvement.

Concerning Boston's chance of rivaling Paris, he said:

"Paris has spent hundreds of millions of dollars during the past ten or fifteen years in beautifying the city.

"The work has been done along a logical and comprehensive plan.

"The expenditure has justified itself, it has paid good returns. For now Paris is known all over the world as a splendid city to visit, a place worth seeing.

"Boston could do the same."

The former Mayor roundly denounced the "narrowness, bigotry and provincialism" of Malden, Medford, Watertown, Newton—"especially Newton"—and other Metropolitan cities and towns for refusing to join in a comprehensive scheme to beautify the Metropolitan district.

"They defeated a bill under the provisions of which Boston—though paying 40 per cent. of the cost—would have had but one vote like the rest of them in projected improvements," said Mr. Fitzgerald.

He attacked "those men of wealth and power in Boston who have set their faces against improvement" and he cited as an illustration the protest of Hamilton place to a street, and the opposition it has met.

He spoke of Cornhill.

"Look at those old buildings," he explained. "What do you think of them? Their taxes are paid largely by the tenants, not by the owners, and the owners refuse to improve the property.

"He criticised those landowners made wealthy by unearned increment which resulted from the installation of subway systems and the consequent increase in the value of their lands.

"But when a public improvement is brought up for discussion, and they are asked to help," he said, "they reply that they are not interested."

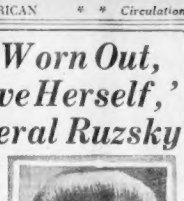
'Germany Worn Out, Cannot Save Herself,' Says General Ruzsky

Russia's Famous Soldier, Commander in North, Describes Wholesale Surrender as Ominous Sign.

BOSTON AMERICAN AND LONDON DAILY TELEGRAPH EXCLUSIVE CABLE SERVICE.

Petrograd, Nov. 15.

General Ruzsky has given the following interview to the correspondent of the Bourse Gazette:



GENERAL N. P. RUZSKY, commander of the Russian Northern Army, the man who twice stopped Von Hindenburg, first at Warsaw, now at Riga. Ruzsky, "half Bayard, half Moltke," is Russia's ideal fighting man and a savant besides. He has been dubbed "The Learned Lieutenant."

"We are now guaranteed against unpleasant surprises on the part of the Germans. The time for surprises is past. The Germans are still strong, but not so strong that we need fear them.

"The Anglo-French army has so thoroughly fortified itself that it there are surprises they can only be agreeable to our allies.

"Wait a little and there will be a fifth ally.

"By not advancing, the Germans in reality are retreating. Recently they also have been deteriorating in physique.

"At Dvinsk we are delivering tremendous blows by our transition to the aggressive.

"The Germans now surrender readily in whole companies and battalions. This, in my opinion, is an ominous sign. Their men, worn out by privations and the cold, show no trace of their former self-confidence. These are facts, not illusions.

"The Balkans are a secondary theatre of war. It is not there that the fate of nations will be decided. Even if Germany should operate successfully in the Balkans she will merely make things temporarily easy for herself. She cannot save herself.

The story of the landing of Russian troops on the Bulgarian coast is untrue."

TODAY'S STOCK MARKET

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor

Stocks were irregular in the last hour after rallying from their lowest. Prices ses-sawed and were uncertain to trend all day. Among gains in New York at 2:15 were: Studebaker 2, Great Northern Ore ¾, Mexican Petroleum 1¾, General Motors 1, Colorado Fuel ¾, Tennessee Copper 1, Interborough ¼, Utah 1¼, Cuba 1, Westinghouse 2⅝, Canadian Pacific ½, Chesapeake & Ohio ¾, "Mop" ¼, Northern Pacific ½, Pennsylvania ¼, St. Paul ¼, Union Pacific ¼, Erie ¼ and Rock Island ⅝.

Declines included Allis-Chalmers 1⅛, American Can ⅝, U. S. Steel ⅝, Baldwin 1, Bethlehem 4, Crucible 1¾, Distillers 1¼, Maxwell 1, Waltham ⅝, Sears, Willys-Overland 3, Southern Pacific ⅝, Reading ⅝, N. Y. Central ⅝, Baltimore & Ohio ¼. War order issues had weakened the most. Bulls were quite active after the break and took lower.

In Boston gains included Adventure 1, Calumet & Arizona ½, Copper Range ½, North Butte ⅝, Osceola 1⅛, Wolverine 2½, St. Mary's Mineral Land ½, Atlantic Gulf common ¼, preferred 1, Mexican Petroleum 1, Maine 1 and American Woolen preferred ½.

Among losses here were American Zinc 1⅛, Butte & Superior ¼, Alaska Gold ½, Granby ½, Tamarack ½, Trinity ½, New Haven ½ and U. S. Smelting ¼.

Copper sales within a fortnight are estimated at from 140,000,000 to 150,000,000 pounds. An unfounded report that a German submarine had sunk a transatlantic liner was one pretext for bear pressure during the morning.

LOW PRICED RAILS ACTIVE.

Prices were higher at the opening in New York and early trading was of considerable volume. Gains covered the list. Motor issues were the strongest, Studebaker and Willys-Overland opening with seven points added to each. Rails participated in the most. But gains were fractional as a rule. Buying by the public caused the initial rise. After over-Sunday orders were executed demand diminished and offerings increased. Within a few minutes the list was below its best, but it soon rallied. Another recession followed soon in the morning left the market irregular. There was headgame all midday, but by afternoon the majority of issues showed gains. Another recession followed. Morning fluctuations totalled more than 400,000 shares. The activity was on declining. The bond market continued to be brisk. Several low priced rails were strong, including Rock Island and Missouri Pacific. Sentiment was more bullish at first, owing to business reports. Argentine and Brazilian houses indicated public interest is increasing. But trading on the whole was professional in character. Canadians crossed 89, its highest since Amalgamated Copper broke. Utah sold at its highest record price and Chinese made a good gain. Other issues to show strength at times were Baldwin, Maxwell, Canadian Pacific, Mexican Petroleum, Great Northern Ore and Tennessee Copper. U. S. Steel rose on good demand and varied in price from a fractional gain to more than a point loss. Sterling exchange was firm and quiet.

METAL PRICES ADVANCE.

Prices were firm in Boston at the start with sales in the curb market. Lead Zinc attained a record high, selling at 7⅛. Butte & Superior was strong. Both reacted. Shattuck-Arizona sold at 24¾, its highest record. There was not much business in Boston curb stocks from mining affairs. Atlantic Gulf preferred and United Fruit were strong, the latter advancing more than two points. Copapers averaged higher and the local market had a breadth. The advance of metal prices was a sustaining influence. A leading copper producer sold at 18⅝ cents a pound. The selling situation is very strong. Prime Western spot spelter has brought 17 cents. It is quoted at 17 to 17½ in New York, where demand is enormous. Anaconda Smelting has advanced its lead price from 5.15 to 5.25 cents. Spot copper was up 11 and futures 15s in London, where electrolytic was unchanged. Lead was 15s higher. Spelter was off 5. The Boston bank statement shows a decrease of $145,000 in cash excess. Regarding stocks, the Boston News Bureau says—"Leasing rates reflected a slightly overbought condition of the market. Rates were higher; money loaned at 3 to 4 per cent."

Mayor Writes to Mrs. Washington

Mayor Curley today sent a letter of condolence to Mrs. Booker T. Washington, in which he said:

"Mr. Washington served his race with ability and fidelity unsurpassed in American history, and he will receive the generous tribute of all men for this devotion."

ASK VALUATION OF BAY STATE STRICKEN OUT

The Municipal Officers' Association, comprising mayors of cities in which the Bay State Street Railway operates, today petitioned the Public Service Commission to strike out the valuation evidence offered in the six cent fare case by the Bay State's valuation expert, Robert M. Feustel.

By Feustel's evidence, the Bay State seeks to show that it is not earning a reasonable dividend on its valuation.

The Municipal Officers' Association asks that the proper method of determining physical valuation be decided by the commission and specifically asks that the Feustel evidence be eliminated.

Conrad W. Crocker, who questioned the dereliction of the Public Service Commission in the case, has filed his motion officially with the commission.

The motions will be argued when the commission resumes its public hearings tomorrow forenoon, at 10:30 o'clock, in room 421, State House.

OUR FIRST DUTY IS TO MAINTAIN PEACE; OUR NEXT DUTY IS TO PREPARE FOR WAR

The AMERICAN disapproves of a loan to prolong the war in Europe and is unwilling to accept any money for advertising such a loan. The AMERICAN does not, however, feel at liberty to deprive its readers of the statements of the proponents of the loan, whether in news text or in advertising. The AMERICAN therefore prints the advertisement of the loan, but contributes the money paid therefor to the Red Cross, in the hope of relieving some of the suffering and injury which a war loan will inevitably cause.

Big News---The Resolution Is Adopted!

Christmas Will Be Christmas, This Year, in EVERY Home in Boston; Even in Those Homes Darkened by Old Age, Sickness or an Accident to the Breadwinner of the Family

IT is written somewhere that "He that hath mercy on the poor, happy is HE."

And the saying is a true one.

The way to be happy on Christmas morning is to be sure that others are happy.

No good man, who has plenty, whose children are well fed and warmly clad, can be really happy, five weeks from the coming Sunday, if he knows that, somewhere in this great city of three-quarters of a million souls, there is one widow with a houseful of bairns to whom Christmas is only a name and "good will to men" merely a phrase.

You could fill a library with the books, studies, reports, essays and junk that have been written about poverty. One man writes of "The Blessings of Poverty," another on "Poverty and Its Causes"; a sociologist, on "The Management of the Poor." There are books on the "Battle of Life."

SOME have considered poverty as a kind of social evil, a "disease of the State."

Meanwhile we have, and have ALWAYS had—always WILL have—the poor, our brothers.

"The poor shall never cease out of the land." So reads the Old Testament dispensation, and Our Saviour said, "The poor ye have ALWAYS with you."

Men make a mistake who hold poverty and pauperism to be synonymous. Poverty may be brought about by any one of many causes, the arrest of business, sickness, old age, an accident to the bread-winner of the family. "Blessed is he that considereth the poor."

Therefore, be it

Resolved: That there shall be no hungry little boy or no hungry little girl on Christmas Day in the city of Boston, Commonwealth of Massachusetts; that there shall be no home, in all this great city, without (at least) its Christmas Basket of chicken and all the "fixings," bought from a Christmas Basket Fund established by all the people.

The resolution is adopted, unanimously!

THIS charity is the charity of the readers of the Boston AMERICAN, who last year sent to the homes of the needy in Boston no less than seven thousand well-filled Christmas Baskets! The AMERICAN acted last year, and is prepared to again serve cheerfully, as the almoner of YOUR bounty.

Contributions to the Christmas Basket Fund may be sent to the Editor of the Boston AMERICAN, No. 80 Summer street, Boston. ALL will be promptly and publicly acknowledged. Mr. Oscar E. Shepard, president and treasurer of Shepard, Clark & Co., No. 85 Commercial street, is already the generous donor of 2,000 wooden baskets. Who will help to FILL them?

The AMERICAN undertakes to pay all the expense of collection and distribution. ONE HUNDRED PER CENT. OF YOUR FUND WILL GO STRAIGHT TO THE HOMES OF THE NEEDY.

"Obey that impulse" to do a kindly, brotherly, "Christmassy" deed. Send your Christmas Basket donation today.

"Yours for a Happy Christmas!"

Once-Overs

If you put a check-rein on your imagination you will find that much of your worry will disappear.

The troubles we anticipate give us more pain than those we experience.

Some people worry for fear they may be ill. This makes the likelihood of illness greater because it takes away the very confidence needed to ward off disease.

There are people who are always worrying about how to invest their savings; and while in this condition they are more apt to make a poor investment than otherwise, because the mind is not up to its usual keen state.

Others worry for fear they may lose their positions. This makes them lose the confidence they did have, initiative goes, and they become less valuable to their employers and discharge is imminent.

Worry brings on dyspepsia, physical and mental.

Quit worrying. You cannot stop what is going to happen, and you only weaken the whole nervous system by thinking too much about it. Nothing to gain and all to lose by worry.

Women Never Respect the Men They Can Boss

Husbands Make Mistake When They Think to Propitiate Wives by Agreeing With Them

By Dorothy Dix

A KANSAS woman, who is being sued by her husband for desertion, justified her act in flying the domestic coop on the ground that her husband was so easy to henpeck that there was no fun in doing it.

"He always agreed with me on every subject," she testified in court, "and it was just impossible to get up an argument with him."

The majority of wives, used to husbands who go about with a chip on their shoulders and with whom they can get into a red-hot debate on any subject from politics to pie, will be inclined to think that the Kansas woman didn't know good thing when she had it.

Nevertheless there is something to be said from her point of view also, for there are no people so uninteresting as those who have no opinions of their own. They are like rice pudding, tasteless and flavorless, and the best you can say of them is that you don't dislike them and that they agree with you.

The art of agreeing with people is one of the finest arts in the world and the supreme test of one's savoir faire. There are those who are weakly acquiescent. They are backboneless fools, and you are no more flattered at their concurring in your opinion than an actor is at the perfunctory round of applause from the ushers in the theatre.

There are those who always agree with you in everything you say, for fear of hurting your feelings or precipitating an argument in which you will lose your temper. They insult you. They treat you as if you were an imbecile, as a baby to whom one murmurs, "There, there, now, it's all right," to keep it soothed and quiet.

There are others, however, who have opinions of their own and the courage to defend them, but who apparently permit themselves to be gently and irresistibly drawn to your way of thinking, and who finally agree with you perfectly, seemingly converted by your superior logic. This is the subtlest form of the compliment, and it is one that hits the red in our vanity every time.

Evidently the Kansas man was not a master of the fine art of agreeing, and without being a Sherlock Holmes one can figure that he was the sort of man who echoed his wife's opinions rather than hear her discuss them, and who preferred to admit when he came home late at night that he was a brute, a wretch, a mean, selfish thing, who wasn't worthy of a noble, patient, angelic wife, to debating a man's ethical right to a latchkey.

Just how aggravating this must have been to a woman nobody but a woman can understand, for most women's opinions are in a state of solution, and it takes a man's opposition to crystallize them. How, for instance, is a woman to know that a new hat is absolutely necessary to her happiness until her husband tells her that she can't have it? How is she to know that her heart was set on going to the theatre, unless her husband refuses to take her? And, above all, how is she to square herself with her conscience if she can't lay the blame of her failure on her husband? And how is she to get out of doing the thing she doesn't want to do if she can't say that her husband won't allow her?

Certainly a husband who would not help his wife to make up her mind by taking the opposite side of the question in a domestic argument, and who left her no excuse for not doing as she pleased, afforded sufficient grounds for any woman's desertion. Moreover, there is this to be said, also, about the feminine nature. No woman ever loved the man she did not respect, and she never respects a man who is not stronger than she is.

For the man she can boss, who takes her opinions from her, and who meekly agrees with her in every way, she has often a tender maternal feeling, but it is the pitying love of a mother for a weakling, and that has in it always something of shame. It is not the love that any man need crave, and so a husband or sweetheart never makes so great a mistake as when he thinks to propitiate a woman by agreeing with her.

She wants, first, the pleasure of arguing a question, then the delight of being overruled by a man's stronger will and judgment, and, finally, if things turn out wrong, the sacred and ineffable joy of being able to say to her husband, "I told you so." And all of this she misses if the husband won't argue.

Happiness

By Jane McLean

O DREAMER, have you wandered far
Upon the hills of Fate?
"I've hitched my wagon to a star
And wandered oft and late.
I've roamed the gypsy road along
The distant purpling hills,
And I have heard the bluebird's song
And drunk the cup that fills."

O dreamer, have you wandered far?
What do you know of Fate?
"I've watched the first faint evening star
Across the garden gate;
The nursery fire my only guide
To lands across the sea
Yet in the apple tree outside
A bluebird sings to me."

Inklings and Thinklings

By Wex Jones

The Wichita Eagle has barred adjectives from its society page. Kansans will never stand for blushing brides and elaborate repasts and happy couples and all that, being boiled down to:

Jane Smith was married to John Robinson yesterday. The bride wore a gown. The bridegroom wore black. They ate some grub and left for Niagara Falls.

Even dark things have their bright side. The London householder finds his gas bills cut down since the Zeppelins became visitors.

Denver Japanese objected to paying tax on motorcycle because, as he tersely put it, the bicycle "no koff; no go." In other words, he refused to cough because the motorcycle didn't Life's mysteries: Price of coal.

Radcliffe girls are paying their way through college by caring for squarium fish. That's our idea of an easy job, cooking for a fish.

Another easy job would be making the bed for oysters.

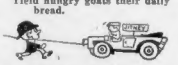
More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

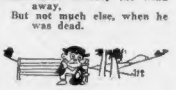
What's the Difference?

THE mansion on the avenue
Whose carved facade so proudly looms
Will bear, inside a year or two,
A legend reading:
"FURNISHED ROOMS."

Those lovely circus lithographs
Of green and yellow, blue and red
Will soon—bears, camels and giraffes—
Yield hungry goats their daily bread.



Imperial Caesar turned to clay,
As Mr. Shakespeare sagely said,
Could serve to keep the wind away,
But not much else, when he was dead.



That haughty garniture of pride—
To wit, a brand new suit of clothes—
Some day you're going to toss outside
To soften old dog Tray's repose.

The splendid auto that you see,
With envy on your furrowed brow,
Will not last long—it's going to be
A jitney bus three years from now.

Most things that other folks have got
Will crumble at time's blighting touch,
So you may think—though I do not—
That nothing matters very much.

Look Out!

When Phyllis drives her auto
Along the avenue,
The chauffeurs dive to cover
And hide, the while, from view.
The jitneys pull up on the curb,
The truckmen watch and pray;
But Phyllis, calm and undisturbed,
Serenely goes her way.

She cheerfully traverses
The left side of the street,
While motors big and little
Endeavor to retreat.
And if some foolish driver
Disputes her path, she cries,
In lovely wrath: "How dare you, sir!
Why don't you use your eyes!"

I've courted sundry dangers
Upon the land and sea.
But death beneath a motor
Would not appeal to me.
And though I wander often
Where other autos are,
I always stick around the house
When Phyllis drives her car!

They're Not Going Back Any

Despite "overwhelming defeats" we notice, now that the smoke has cleared away, that the suffs hold all the trenches they held before the battle.

It Might Have Been Worse

England should not be depressed at King George's failure to stick on his horse. Supposing he'd been riding on a water wagon!

A Horrible Example

The man who lived to be a hundred by chewing tobacco and eating onions seems to justify Mr. Roosevelt's statement that there are some things worse than war.

Use 'Em While They Last

There are still a few neutral topics of conversation, but they're growing fewer very rapidly.
